

CHANGE BASIC LAW OF SUCCESSION TO THE PRESIDENCY

REP. FESS WANTS VICE PRESIDENT TO TAKE OVER DUTIES WHEN PRESIDENT IS DISABLED

UP TO THE SUPREME COURT

High Court Would Be Required to Investigate President's Condition According to Proposed Constitutional Amendment

(By Herbert Walker)
By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—A constitutional amendment giving congress and the supreme court joint power to authorize the vice president or the ranking cabinet officer to assume the duties of the president during a disability of the chief executive has been prepared by Rep. S. D. Fess, Ohio, for introduction in the house today.

Fess would have the constitution amended so that congress might by concurrent resolution declare that the president is unable to serve, after a finding of the facts by the supreme court. In case congress was not in session when the president became disabled the Fess amendment would give the vice president power to call it into special session for the purpose of determining whether the chief executive is able to function.

Details of the plan have not been completed by Fess, as he believes several features of his proposal must be left to legislation to enforce the constitutional amendment. Just who would initiate the proceedings to determine whether the president is unable to serve would be left to later legislation, but Fess believes this should be done by a resolution asking the supreme court to investigate. The legislation enforcing the proposed amendment would give the court power to summon all witnesses necessary for an inquiry into the disability of the chief executive.

Fess who is an authority on United States history said he framed the amendment after a careful scrutiny of the constitution and the debates during the constitutional convention.

"I have determined that the constitution is defective upon this point," said Fess, "and the additional authority from the states in the form of a constitutional amendment is necessary to give the other two branches of the government the judicial and legislative power, to provide for such disabilities as have just occurred. There is no doubt that some one should be the responsible head of the government during such periods and I believe the power of designating another official to serve temporarily should be left jointly to congress and the supreme court, thus assuring the elimination of partisan influence in case congress and the president are of different political parties. By a study of the constitutional debates I have found that this question came up in the convention and was never finally determined. Likewise I have found at least two precedents for my position that neither congress nor any part of the government has power to designate one to serve during a disability of the president."

Fess' amendment would be an addition to article two, section one, which reads in part:

"In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, inability to discharge the duties of said office, the same shall devolve upon the vice president and the congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, inability both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected."

The amendment would add "such inability shall be determined by a concurrent resolution of congress after a finding of fact by the supreme court and the vice president shall have power to call congress in special session for such purpose, if it is not then in session."

Suffs Endorse League With No Reservations

Bitter Debate Precedes Vote on Women's Stand on League of Nations at Closing Session of National Convention

By United Press Leased Wire

Chicago.—The league of women voters in its closing session here today approved the league of nations without reservations. The resolution was adopted after bitter debate on the motion of Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Boston, that "we urge adhesion of the United States to the league of nations with such reservations as considered necessary but with the least possible delay." The phrase "with such reservations" was stricken out before adoption.

The convention, by a close vote, adopted a resolution opposing compulsory military training.

In the league fight Mrs. Catherine W. McCallum moved striking out of the reservation phrase.

After considerable debate, during which the reservations were supported by Miss Blackwell and Mrs. George Munson of Kansas, the amendment was adopted.

Mrs. Munson contended such reservations should be adopted as would keep the United States out of purely European troubles.

She declared "we all have brothers, husbands and sons and we do not want them to fight on European battlefields to settle European difficulties which do not affect us."

Directors-at-large chosen today were: Mrs. Maud Wood Park, Boston; Mrs. Richard Edwards, Indiana; and Mrs. Sloane Jacobs, Alabama.

Officers elected today were: National Chairman, Mrs. Maude Wood Park, Boston; vice chairman, Mrs. George Gilhorn, St. Louis; secretary, Mrs. Sloane Jacobs, Birmingham; treasurer, Mrs. Richard Edwards, Peru, Ind.; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt was elected honorary chairman.

Chicago.—Federal officers here investigating alleged income tax frauds, believed today the government was swindled out of millions of dollars in the Chicago district alone.

The first man arrested in connection with the investigation was Albert L. Lauer, secretary-treasurer of the Briggs and Turivas Company, wreckers and salvage brokers. Lauer was charged with offering a bribe of $30,000 to Charles Callner, an employee of internal revenue department.

Callner rushed into the office of United States District Attorney Charles P. Cline and threw $15,000 in $100 and $50 bills on the desk. He said Lauer gave him the money and promised $15,000 additional when the falsified income tax records were successfully put through the internal revenue department.

Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis appeared for Lauer and offered property bail "amounting to a million dollars" if not paid.

Government officials refused to accept the property bail and Lauer spent the night in jail.

The Briggs and Turivas Company worked on large government contracts during the war. Books and records of the concern were seized immediately after Lauer's arrest. Officials stated the company's income would amount to approximately $150,000.

USE OF ASH-WOOD BUTTER
TUBS KEEPS PRICES UP

By United Press Leased Wire

Chicago.—Elimination of packing butter in tubs of ash wood will reduce the price of butter at least one cent a pound, P. W. Houska, Chicago secretary of the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers declared today. Butter manufacturers in session here agreed to eliminate ash tubs and pack their products in boxes of non-odoriferous wood.

"Packing butter in tubs of ash wood is a tradition," Houska said.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jones and children and Miss Cora Sackett left for California this morning, where they will remain for three months. They will divide their time principally between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Some other way formally of ending the war with Germany through negotiation of a separate treaty or passage of a resolution declaring the war over. This might be followed by negotiation of the necessary treaties of amity and commerce.

The democrats have not given up hope of getting enough votes to force adoption of one or the other of their compromise proposals of article X. It takes a minority vote to adopt a reservation and make it a part of the resolution of ratification. This is quite a different process from final ratification, which required a two thirds vote.

BRITAIN PREFERS U. S. FRIENDSHIP TO THAT OF ITALY

BRITISH GOVERNMENT ADVISED TO GO TO ANY LENGTH TO PLACATE PRESIDENT WILSON

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—The Allies have asked President Wilson to make further suggestions for settlement of the Adriatic question, according to the conference report today as the contents of the reply to Wilson's protest against the proposed settlement. The reply was received at the state department today but it was announced that it would not be made public and that Wilson's original protest would also be withheld. At the White House it was said there was no immediate intention of making public either of the documents.

Wilson's intimation that the treaty might be withdrawn from the senate if the Allies persist in their course, was met, it was reported with a declaration that the Allies do not want the United States to stand aloof, or to recall the American ships and men in the Adriatic patrol.

The president it is believed will answer the Allied note by outlining a course of action which would be acceptable to him.

London.—The Allied reply to President Wilson's note on the Adriatic situation was handed to Ambassador Davis last night, the Morning Post said today.

It was understood the completed text was modified considerably from the first draft prepared. The London correspondent of the Matin, in Paris said he learned the first draft was completed Saturday, but was held up at the last moment for reconsideration, after which it was decided to word the document in a more conciliating tone.

"The 'eleventh hour delay' in the note," the correspondent said, was due to intervention by Lord Grey and Lord Cecil, "who considered the question very grave."

The situation today was believed to contain grave possibilities. It

Washington.—The senate commerce committee today scrutinized bids received by the shipping board of former German ships. Chairman John Barton Payne of the board was called before the committee to present the figures and explain them.

Payne told the commerce committee that the shipping board had had already rejected the bids received in the auction which closed yesterday and another auction will be held next month subject to the approval of congress.

Senators on the committee planned to make careful comparisons between the estimated value of the vessels and the amounts bid before permitting deals to be closed by the board. The committee will report its findings to the senate for final action before the board accepts offers.

In view of the low bids submitted some senators doubted if the shipping board would recommend acceptance of any of them.

A definite policy with regard to disposition of all government owned passenger and freight carrying vessels is expected to be the subject of congress as a result of the collapse of the auction of ex-German liners, it was learned in shipping board circles.

Former Food Dictator Declares for Ratification of Treaty, Budget System and Collective Bargaining

By United Press Leased Wire

New York.—Herbert Hoover made known his attitude on several national and international questions in a speech before the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, of which he was unanimously elected president. He declared for prompt ratification of the peace treaty.

Establishment of a federal budget system.

Right of employees to bargain collectively.

Retention of a large merchant fleet to protect American overseas commerce.

Regarding return of the railway systems to private control Hoover said it "places predominate private operation upon its final trial."

Hoover said there was little danger of radicalism ever controlling this country, because of the large farmer population.

CANNOT CUT RAIL RATES UNTIL SIX MONTHS PASS BY

GOVERNMENT PROTECTS ITSELF AGAINST RATE REDUCTIONS BY THE STATE COMMISSIONS

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—No reduction in rates can be made for six months after the railroads of the country are returned to private ownership, according to the terms of the combined senate and house railroad bill agreed upon by the conferees.

The conference report on the two measures, which is to be submitted to the house today, provides that the guaranteed standard rental allowed the railroads under federal control shall be continued six months after the return of the lines on March 1 and that during this period the rates now in effect will apply. Both interstate and intrastate rates are included.

Efforts are to be made to prevent state commissions from lowering rates within their jurisdiction and causing additional losses for the government because of the guarantee.

Democrats, opposing this and other "guarantee sections" of the bill, claim that rates will not remain at the present level, but will be increased in the future because of these provisions.

Efforts are to be made by Representatives Sims and Barker, the democratic conferees to defeat the conference report for this reason.

Action on the conference report will not be started in the house until Saturday. Efforts will be made to reach an agreement on that day, thus allowing the senate next week to act in order that the measure may be sent to the president before March 1.

A new rule of rat making is established with the provision that the interstate commerce commission must adjust rates so that the roads will be guaranteed a return of 5 1/2 per cent on their aggregate property value. Any profits above six per cent are to be divided between the carriers earning it and a government contingent fund to aid the weaker roads.

Labor disputes are to be settled through adjustment boards with an equal number of representatives on both sides with the right to appeal to a new permanent tribunal created by the bill, the railway board of labor appeals upon which the public carriers and labor are represented. All arbitration is voluntary and no anti-strike provisions are included.

A revolving fund of $300,000,000 is created for loans to the roads.

All indebtedness during federal control is to be funded over a period not to exceed 15 years.

State railroad commissions have no powers over any rates until six months after control ends.

All war powers of the president with regard to railroads are repealed.

Much greater powers are granted the interstate commerce commission, including the right to regulate car improvements, to remove car shortage, to order the joint use of terminals, the pooling of equipment and many other features found beneficial under government control. The commission virtually has power to relieve and meet any emergency in transportation conditions.

Stock and bonds issues must be approved by the commission to prevent wrecking of roads.

No line can be extended or abandoned without the commission's consent.

FORMER SECRETARY OF TREASURY ADVISES GEORGIA TO ELECT 'UNINSTRUCTED DELEGATES'

By United Press Leased Wire

New York.—William G. McAdoo today declined to permit his name to be voted on in the democratic presidential primaries of Georgia, declaring "every effort should be made to send uninstructed delegates" to the national convention "from every state where possible."

But, McAdoo said, he regards it "as the imperative duty of any man to accept a nomination if it should come to him, unsolicited."

McAdoo made this statement in a telegram to Mayor Miller S. Bell of Midville, Ga., his boyhood home, where his name had been entered in the primaries. He said:

"Your telegram informing me that the citizens of Midville have entered my name in the democratic primary of the state of Georgia for president of the United States, duly received. I am not seeking the nomination and am reluctant to do anything that would create the appearance of a candidacy. I cannot feel that this is peculiarly a time when we should fight for principles and not for individuals."

The momentous years through which we have just gone have brought to the fore great human problems which go to the very roots of our social and economic life and insistently demand settlement. The destiny of the human race will be profoundly affected by the things we do and by the wisdom we show during the next four years. Patriotism and constructive leadership of the highest order are necessary and I am convinced that we are most likely to secure them if the supreme consideration of the national interest is not submerged in a contest of individual candidacies for the presidential office. Therefore, I should like to see the next democratic national convention composed of untrammelled men and women bound to no particular candidate and allowed to express their preference freely through the abolition of the unit rule.

"While I realize that under the primary laws uninstructed delegates from some states are impossible, nevertheless I think it highly desirable that every effort should be made to send uninstructed delegates from every state where possible. Personally, I should be delighted if the next

Paris.—Raymond Poincare today transferred the presidential powers of France to Paul Deschanel. The ceremony took place in the Elysee Palace shortly before 2 p. m.

Deschanel was elected at a joint session of the senate and the chamber of deputies at Versailles Jan. 17. Poincare read his farewell message in the senate late yesterday. After thanking the senate and the chamber of deputies for conferring upon him the same honor which he previously had conferred upon Marshal Foch and Georges Clemenceau, he declared "I am honored by the nation's recognition" and the message pointed out the necessity for making peace with Turkey.

This peace, the retiring president said, should be one that will insure tranquility in the orient. Poincare also emphasized the need for adoption of the league of nations into an effective organization, foreign policy to execute the treaty of Versailles and for complete national unity in working out France's financial and material reconstruction.

Immediately following the reading of the message the senate adjourned to reconvene as a high court of justice to take up the trial of former Premier Caillaux.

Third Party Is To Be Formed At Chicago Meet

La Follette Is Mentioned as Presidential Prospect by "Liberals" Who Will Hold Convention Next July

By United Press Leased Wire

St. Louis.—A third political party will contest for the presidency in the coming campaign as a result of a national convention of liberals to be held in Chicago July 3, the "committee of forty-eight" announced here today.

The official call for the nominating convention will be issued shortly, according to committee officials here.

A coalition of the labor party recently organized in Chicago, the national people's league, the committee of forty-eight and other liberals was perfected at an executive session held in Chicago, according to Sheridan Carlisle, Missouri manager of the national people's league, who attended the sessions.

Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin was prominently mentioned as a presidential prospect, according to Carlisle.

The socialist party will not unite with the liberals, according to Carlisle. Edward Russell, former socialist candidate for governor of New York and other prominent socialists will support the new third party, he said.

MUST NOT RESUME
TRADING IN GRAIN
FUTURES UNTIL JULY

PASSAGE OF GRONNA BILL IS OPPOSED BY LEADING GRAIN EXCHANGES OF COUNTRY

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Trading in wheat futures by grain exchanges will be resumed only as to the new crop and not before next July, James C. McHugh, secretary of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce told the senate agriculture committee today during a hearing on the Gronna bill abolishing the United States Grain Corporation. It would be dangerous to resume future trading before then, whether the Gronna bill passes or not, McHugh said.

He read a brief prepared by representatives of all leading grain exchanges in the country, opposing the Gronna bill on the ground that it would create a chaotic condition in the "rain trade, cause fluctuation in prices, revive profiteering and subject the government to danger of huge losses.

The brief was signed by F. B. Wells, representing the Minneapolis chamber of commerce; L. W. Forbell, New York Produce Exchange; J. A. Lindholm, Omaha grain exchange; W. B. Stites, Philadelphia commercial exchange; M. Flynn, St. Joseph grain exchange; C. A. Morison, St. Louis Merchants Exchange; E. F. Richards, Baltimore chamber of commerce; L. F. Gates, Chicago board of trade; B. Stockman, Duluth board of trade; C. Vincent, Kansas City board of trade and H. M. Stratton, Milwaukee chamber of commerce.

"Passage of the Gronna bill," the brief said, "would jeopardize the interests of producers and all other handlers of wheat and wheat products, and might unduly enhance the liabilities of the government."

"Transfer of the duties now developing upon the grain corporation to any other government agency would inevitably result in a chaotic condition throughout the grain trade, accompanied by severe losses to the producers of wheat and handlers of wheat products, and to the government for these reasons:

"1.—It would create a serious question as to the applicability of the wheat price guarantee to wheat purchased after the passage of the bill.

"2.—It would revive the danger to the government of profiteering."

McHugh, in the course of his remarks said the grain exchanges are opposed to any form of gambling. Senator Gronna angrily retorted:

"If you want to rattle any bones like that, I'll be willing to go into it with you. But you know that the Minneapolis chamber of commerce was charged with being one of the worst gambling dens in the country."

Lists of the draft deserters will be published, either in whole or locally in sections for the information of the department of justice and local police, it was announced.

SALE OF GERMAN SHIPS URGED BY HEAD OF BOARD

SHIPPING INDUSTRY MUST EITHER BE NATIONALIZED OR SHIPS SOLD, PAYNE SAYS

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Congress must either nationalize the shipping industry or allow the sale of vessels on hand, Chairman Payne of the shipping board told the senate commerce committee today.

Payne appeared before the committee to submit bids offered in the auction of ex-German passenger vessels seized by this country. These bids Payne said, have already been rejected but he added another auction will be held subject to approval of congress.

The sale of ships, Payne insisted, is in line with the policy outlined by congress and the president. So far 188 ships have been sold for $33,545,941.81. Eighteen of these are ex-German cargo ships.

If the ships are to be sold Payne said, they should be sold now before production of warships.

If the ships are to be kept, Payne said congress should provide $75,000,000 for conversion of the ex-German liners from troop to passenger carriers.

Payne submitted bids on fifteen ships excluding the Leviathan, totaling $20,400,000. This was more than $200,000 higher than the appraised value of them by a naval board, he said.

There is no chance of any of the ships offered for sale being transferred to a foreign flag, Payne testified.

The board, Payne said, cannot force private operators to maintain vessels in specified trade routes unless the government guarantees against loss.

Responding to questions by Senator Kirby, Arkansas, Payne refuted charges that the International Mercantile Marine was a British concern.

"We made a thorough investigation of these charges several months ago and after examining documents of the company, we came to the conclusion that it was 100 per cent American," he said.

It is costing the government $12

M'ADOO DECLINES TO PERMIT USE OF NAME IN PRIMARY

National convention might actually be a great democratic conference where the utmost freedom of action should prevail and where the motive of high service alone should control. If in such a convention a platform is adopted and a candidate is selected representing the great constructive, progressive and spiritual forces of the day, the favorable opinion of the country would be enlisted at the very outset. The issue would then be sharply drawn between us and the forces of standstillism and reaction which are already overreaching themselves and claiming with presumptions confidence the victory in November.

"Holding these views, you can readily understand why I prefer not to be entered in the Georgia primary and why I must beg my good friends to withdraw my name. I cannot consistently enter the primary in any state when it is my earnest conviction that the delegates from every state should go to the convention without instructions to secure their power and opportunity for the best service of their country."

"No greater honor than a nomination for the presidency can come to any man short of election to the presidency itself. In a democracy like ours the obligations of good citizenship are supreme and I should therefore regard it as the imperative duty of any man to accept a nomination if it should come to him unsolicited. I saw this as the risk of being charged with harboring a candidate notwithstanding the explicit statements of this letter, but I am sure that on the whole, I shall not be misunderstood. Please accept my warm thanks for your generous support and be good enough to secure my friends and my sincere gratitude for the honor they have done me."

HOTEL PROFITEERS IN COAST CITIES HOLD UP TOURISTS

MR. AND MRS. HENRY BAST, BACK FROM TRIP TO WEST, SAY COAST IS IN NEED OF RAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bast returned last night from a six weeks' visit to the Pacific coast. They made the trip over the Canadian Pacific road and returned by way of the Southern Pacific. They covered between seven and eight thousand miles.

Upon reaching the Pacific coast they visited nearly all the principal cities, including Seattle, Portland, Spokane, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, and even went down into Mexico. People all along the coast were praying for rain. This is the rainy season, but so far the extreme drought has not been broken.

The number of tourists in California this winter is greater than was ever known before. Mr. Bast found it almost impossible to secure accommodations and stated that from $12 to $17 is charged for a room for a single night. Cheaper rooms can be had, but it is almost impossible for strangers to locate them. The railroads are taxed to their utmost capacity in handling the tourists and it is almost impossible to secure berths. Reserving them in advance does not always insure them. Several dollars is frequently paid for a seat in a Pullman car and about the only way a person can get one is to pay the occupant his price.

While lodging was high the Appleton tourists were able to get good meals at a very reasonable price. Provisions are much cheaper than in Wisconsin and there is an abundance of all kinds of fruit and vegetables. The temperature in southern California averaged about 85 degrees.

One of the most interesting cities which Mr. and Mrs. Bast visited was Tijuana, Mexico, where the one hundred days horse races are in progress. Gambling of all kinds is conducted in the opening and the warehouses are filled with liquor which is freely dispensed.

Bull fights are conducted in connection with the horse races, but the Appleton tourists arrived too late to witness one. They visited the arena, however, which has an immense seating capacity. Tijuana is less than a two hours ride by automobile trip from San Diego. The roads are excellent and there was much speeding in San Diego and along the highways. Over $400 in fines were collected in San Diego in one day.

GIVEN AUTO RIDE: SUES FOR DAMAGES

Superior, Wis.—In 1917 Homer R. Corey, local lumberman, gave John Howe, Superior real estate man, a ride in his automobile. The trip ended when the automobile was driven into a train of moving box cars and both men were hurt. Mr. Howe has started suit in circuit court for $10,000 to compensate him for loss of time, cost of doctor service and other expenses arising out of his injuries.

LOCAL COMPANY'S ROAD BID CALLED TOO HIGH

"Chances are ten to one that the bid on the Garvey and Weyenberg company of Appleton, for building the Milwaukee road at $40,000 per mile, will be rejected," A. R. Hirst, state highway engineer, stated at Fond du Lac yesterday. The bid was examined today in the office of the highway commission at Madison. "The bid is undoubtedly out of harmony with the spirit of highway construction," Mr. Hirst said. "I find that bids all over the United States on highway building are abnormally high. Many states are pulling in their horns and waiting.

"Personally I think that high bids such as Garvey and Weyenberg submitted, are due to the shaky condition of the market for material and labor. I think that after a time things will become stable and prices will go back to the sphere of reason. I think a shake down will come soon."

MAIL CARRIER ESCAPES INJURY WHEN SLEIGH TIPS

George Grimmer, rural mail carrier on route three, narrowly escaped injury yesterday on the Hortonville road when his sleigh slid over a high snow bank into the ditch. His horse became frightened and in the mix-up the shafts on the sleigh were broken and other damage suffered by the outfit.

Dandruff Surely Destroys The Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't. It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

RUMORS FORCE DROP IN GRAIN FUTURES

STORY THAT FOOD HELD IN STORAGE WILL BE PLACED ON THE MARKET HAS INFLUENCE

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Grain futures were lower on the Chicago board of trade today, due to rumors that the government had ordered foodstuffs now held in storage houses placed on the market. Testimony before the committee hearing on the Granna bill to abolish the United States Grain Corporation also had a depressing influence. After a drop at the opening, slight recoveries were made due to covering by shorts but all quotations were from 1 to 1 1/2 c below yesterday's close. Provisions were also lower.

Feb. corn opened at $1.40, down 1/2 c and subsequently dropped an additional 1/4 c. March corn was down 1/2 c at the opening, $1.40, and lost 1/4 c in later trading. May corn, down 1/2 c at the opening, $1.33 1/2, later dropped an additional 1/4 c. July corn opened at $1.30, down 1/4 c, later losing 1/2 c.

May oats off 1/2 c at the opening, 80 3/4 c, slumped 1/2 c additional before the close. July oats opened down 3/4 c at 72 3/4 c and subsequently lost another 1/4 c.

ANNUAL ORATORICAL CONTEST AT COLLEGE CHAPEL ON FRIDAY

CHINESE STUDENT WILL REPRESENT LAWRENCE IN CONTEST WITH TWO OTHER SCHOOLS

This year's contest of the Wisconsin State Oratorical Association will be held at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening in Lawrence Memorial chapel. Appleton entertains the contest once every four years, and a large attendance of local people is expected. No admission is to be charged.

Four colleges compete in the contest. Lawrence, Ripon, Carroll and Beloit. Ripon is out of the running this year because of the illness of the speaker whom it was planned to send.

Lawrence will be represented by Yu Sheng Huang, whose oration will be on "Justice to China." He carried off first honors in the inter-class contest about six weeks ago, and his exceptional ability is expected to win him honor in the coming event. He is one of the students sent to American schools by the Chinese government, and is a graduate of Tsing Hua College at Peking, China.

Carroll will be represented by Gerald S. Thomas, whose oration will be "The Returned Soldier." Lytle S. Benedict will represent Beloit, and will speak on "An Educated Citizenry." The winner of the contest here will be eligible for the sectional contest, the date and place of which have not been announced. The first three of the winning list in the sectional contest will compete in the interstate contest. Gold medals will be awarded the winners in the contest Friday evening.

MANY BOOKS ON PUBLIC MARKETS IN LIBRARY
Appleton People Interested in Municipal Markets Can Find Reference Material on Local Bookshelves

Public markets which were considered at a recent meeting of the Woman's club have aroused considerable interest among members who will be pleased to learn that books on the subject can be secured at the public library. Among the books on public markets to be found at the library are:

American Academy of Political and Social Science Reducing the Cost of Food Distribution.
Bittner: What Curb Markets May Be Expected to Accomplish.
King: Lower Living Costs in Cities.
Shilpin: Markets for the People.
The United States Department of Agriculture Yearbook of 1914, also contains a chapter on Retail Public Markets.

OSHKOSH CARLINES ARE BLOCKED BY DEEP SNOW
Oshkosh Interurban lines out of Oshkosh were blocked by deep snowdrifts yesterday but shovellers and snowplows succeeded in cleaning most of the tracks before last night. The Oshkosh-Pond du Lac line was cleared first and then the snow plow was used on the line to Omro.
Shovellers worked all day on the Oshkosh-Neeah line and made considerable headway but the road was not cleared until late this morning.

The Rev. Mr. Prucia of Wauwatosa is visiting here with his daughter, Miss Lucille Prucia, a student of Lawrence college.

Frank Leake, Clintonville real estate dealer, stopped over in Appleton this morning while enroute to Green Bay for the convention of real estate brokers.

JOHN STRANGE WANTS TO CUT PAPER PRICE

MENASHA PAPER MANUFACTURER WANTS TO BE G. O. P. DELEGATE ON CONSERVATION PLATFORM

Madison.—John Strange, Neenah, former lieutenant governor of the state, is out as a delegate to the national republican convention at Chicago. One of his main issues is the paper situation.

"A great daily newspaper printed in Chicago uses as much print paper annually as do all newspapers combined published within the state of Wisconsin," says Mr. Strange in his statement. "This newspaper had an ample supply of blank paper at all times to take care of its constantly growing needs for paper, and now harken. It costs this big Chicago daily paper more than $2,000,000 a year less than it costs the Wisconsin publishers for a like quantity of paper."

"In 1910 small newspapers could buy paper at such prices as enable them to prosper. The same condition can be restored by wise political action and every Wisconsin publisher should be alive to the need of such action as will restore equitable market conditions."

Mr. Strange then announces his candidacy as delegate-at-large, and says that if elected he will use his influence at the national republican convention toward a restoration of the conditions that prevailed prior to 1912.

Announcement was made at the La Follette delegate headquarters Tuesday that the additional names for the remaining districts of the state were practically ready. It was pointed out that now that candidates have until March 7 to file their papers there is no need for a rush. The platform is also practically complete and will be announced within a few days.

YOUNG MEN TAKE OVER REPAIR DEPARTMENT
Frank C. Weber and Ray De Coster have purchased the repair department of the Heckert Shoe company. They will conduct the department in connection with the Heckert store as in the past.

"FOOD DRAFTS" CAN BE SENT TO ARMENIA

LOCAL BANK WILL ASSIST IN SENDING FOOD TO SUFFERING PEOPLE IN NEAR EAST

A new plan by which the people of this country can send food to their friends or relatives who are suffering in central Europe has been devised by the American Relief Administration. It overcomes the difficulty of sending packages from here, many of which never reach their destination.

The administration has established central warehouses at Hamburg, Warsaw, Vienna, Prague and Budapest. "Food drafts" may be issued on any of these warehouses for supplies.

"Through the Wisconsin Bankers' association, drafts are being sent to all banks requesting them anywhere in the state, in line with the national plan of the relief officials in this country. These are in denominations of $10 and $50. A ten dollar draft will buy 24 1/2 pounds of flour, 10 pounds of beans, five pounds of bacon and eight cans of milk. The $50 draft will buy a much larger proportion of these articles. There are also two other combinations which furnish a different variety of staple foods. The Citizens National bank of this city has applied for food drafts and within a few days they may be purchased here. The drafts are mailed direct to the persons in the stricken countries to whom packages would have ordinarily been sent. By presenting them at any station of the relief organization, they can draw the articles designated. The movement has the full endorsement of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, Governor Philipp and Hon. Magnus Svenson, head of the American Relief commission in this state.

ZION CHURCH WILL BE 17 YEARS OLD SUNDAY

SPECIAL SERVICES AT TRINITY CHURCH SUNDAY

He is noted as one of the ablest missionaries in the Lutheran church. Special music will be furnished by the choir.

NO REAL RELIEF YET IN SIGHT.

The investigation of food prices and buying reported in last night's Post-Crescent reveals some interesting facts. It showed for one thing that there has been a slight decrease in prices of some food commodities and in other necessities of living. From this some persons are apt to reach the conclusion that substantial relief to the consumer is in prospect and that before long we shall have a material easing off in prices.

We should not, however, raise our hopes too high on these surface indications. While it is true that we are in the midst of one of the worst, and perhaps least justified, periods of inflation the country has ever experienced, there are as yet no signs of its disappearance or even improvement. The financial interests of the country, and particularly the federal reserve banks, have been doing everything in their power recently to combat this inflation by discouraging speculation and the use of money for other than strictly legitimate and constructive purposes. But congress does nothing and the president is helpless to resist the tendencies, practices, and influences which are being utilized to get rich quickly at the expense of the consumer—in fact at the expense of anybody who may be considered a possible victim.

Profiteering goes on unabashed and wages and prices are pyramided one upon the other. Until something is done by the government through congress and its executive and administrative branches to reduce this inflation and to punish profiteering, there is small prospect of improvement. The banks alone cannot provide the remedy. There is another avenue of hope, but it would be costly relief in the long run. We refer to the conditions of foreign exchange which are now bordering upon a state that may seriously curtail the volume of American exports. If this situation actually results in inability of Europe to buy American goods in the amount that our surplus production requires it to take, we shall then be confronted by over-production, and unless we can find an outlet in the markets of Asia and South America the laws of supply and demand will inevitably bring prices down. However, relief of this character would react against our prosperity and would sooner or later enforce reduced production, whereas the great need of this country, as well as of the world, is for increased production.

Ratification of peace would have a great deal to do, we believe, with an improvement in the financial strain which now oppresses Europe and which threatens to extend its effects harmfully to the United States. Political conditions in this country are in such a state as to aggravate instead of improve the troubles from which we are suffering. Absolutely nothing has been done to solve the problems of reconstruction and to return the country to healthful and orderly prosperity. Until we get down to this basis there will be little change. And we cannot have a change until we secure a competent congress, a competent president and disposition of the peace treaty.

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE.

A good deal of urging over a period of 20 years or more, assisted by the war, has finally built up a very respectable trade between the United States and Latin America.

The figures for 1919 are just coming in. They show that the commerce between the two continents for the year totalled close to three billions of dollars. Of this, South and Central America imported into this country something over two billions while the United States exports to Latin America ran just short of one billion. This indicated an increase of $650,000,000 over 1914 in U. S. products shipped to them while they increased their exports to the U. S. about $600,000,000.

South and Central America have a population of approximately 100,000,000. Before the war their foreign commerce with the world amounted to $3,000,000, 000 (three billions). In 1919 it was $5,000,000,000 (five billions), an increase in six years of 66 per cent. It will be noted that the trade of the United States in 1919 with its Latin-speaking neighbors was 6 per cent of their total foreign business.

South and Central America are still greatly undeveloped areas. Only the fringe has been touched. As the people develop in industry, education and cosmopolitanism, they will want more of the good things of life, good things that the United States produces in immense quantities. Moreover, great masses of the poor people of Europe and other parts of the world will be attracted to the magnificent stretches of uninhabited lands of Latin America and they also will develop a taste for North American goods. There is no doubt that the three billion dollar trade between the two continents in 1919 was a mere fraction to what is coming and it behooves the people of the United States to keep on cultivating these southern folks and be good little neighbors to them.

THE RIGHT ATTITUDE TOWARD GERMANY.

The decision of the allied governments to waive their demand for the surrender of a long list of alleged German war criminals, and to permit Germany, upon her own agreement, to try these men on the crimes charged is prudent and well taken. This settlement of the controversy is reached with the understanding that the trials will be conducted in good faith, and that they shall be without interference from external or allied sources. The powers reserve to themselves the right to determine by the results as to whether Germany faithfully discharges the obligation she assumes.

This proceeding may strike some who are especially rigid in the desire for retribution as both strange and unpromising. Nevertheless it has its advantages, even from the purely allied standpoint. For one thing, it gives the world an opportunity to judge the Germany of today in comparison with the German autocracy of the war. These trials should throw considerable light upon the mental and moral attitude of the German people under their new and liberalized form of government. It will disclose to us whether their conception of right and wrong, as fostered and engrained by a harsh militarism, has undergone modification. It will show whether agreements of an international character are discharged with honesty and fidelity. It will put the German government upon its honor, and although under delicate circumstances, there is no reason why this honor cannot be preserved and justice permitted to take its course. We may say that it is too much to expect Germany to even acknowledge war crimes, and out of all question to suppose that she will punish the guilty. That will depend upon whether we have a chastened Germany and one which desires to take its place morally with the free and Christian nations of the world.

There is already asserting itself in Great Britain a sentiment which is favorable to a revision of the peace treaty, with a purpose to ameliorate those conditions which weigh most heavily and severely upon the recuperation of Germany. Lord Curzon in parliament the other day admitted that this policy was receiving attention. He declared that "If Germany shows a disposition faithfully to carry out her obligations, we will do our best to aid her in fulfilling them and resuming her place among civilized communities." We believe that this is a sound, as well as an ethical attitude. It has been said that the whole theory of the treaty of Versailles was that Germany should be treated according to her performances. This is another way of saying that in the last analysis Germany has her destiny in her own hands, and that the allied nations will aid her in re-establishing herself provided only she exhibits the spirit of good faith, honor and responsibility which is indispensable to the resumption of right relationships between her and the rest of the world. The trial of her alleged war criminals upon charges to be brought by the allies will be an initial test of the existence of this spirit. Much having to do with Germany's future welfare may come from the results.

The wife of a new member of congress was much distressed by the unexpected appearance of an old sweetheart of her daughter—a big good-natured son of the west, though of a rather crude exterior. "Alice," said the mother one day, "I don't understand how you can put up with Jim, now that you've been associating with so many fine young men in the east. I should think he would grate on you. Don't you find him a little rough?"

"Yes, ma," answered she, blushing. "And yet Jim tells me he shaves every day."

Confessions of a Bride

(Copyright, 1920, by The Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

I Find That Gene Archer Had Starved Himself for Us.

Before the darkness descended, we reached Vera Cruz and deposited a woman and the boy in a private hospital. Then we settled Gene Archer in Daddy's own elegant stateroom on the dear old yacht. I did what I could for him that night and next morning surrendered him to the care of a young medical man whom Daddy discovered in Vera Cruz. He was an American, most anxious to get back to the States, and perfectly delighted to make the voyage with a patient on the Lorimer yacht.

"Archer is half starved. The ride to the coast nearly finished him. Heart in bad shape," said Travers to Daddy's companion. "What the deuce has he?"

"Half starved!" I repeated to myself. "Archer didn't eat his own share of rations while we were in the secret chamber! That's why the food lasted so long! That's why Chrys and I had all we needed!"

Gene Archer had starved himself for us, and yet he didn't care a fig for either of us! Men are queer! I remembered that although Archer hadn't been personally interested either in Chrys or in me, he had, nevertheless, suggested that kissing be the payment in a game of forfeits!

One thing was certain. I didn't understand men at all. The more I found out about them, the less I understood them. I perceived how old maids come by such positive opinions about the opposite sex. You could form an opinion based on one fact about a man, but when you had several facts, they contradicted each other and you were robbed of any kind of a verdict!

Gene Archer, for instance, had desired to kiss us girls when he hadn't the slightest sentimental feeling for either of us. That was awfully vulgar—and still he was the nicest of men! Why, he cared more for the secret of the ancient masons than he did for any woman he ever saw! And still he had starved himself, even to the danger line, so that we two girls might not feel hungry! That was chivalry at its best.

Verily, men were full of contradictions and altogether beyond a woman's comprehension. No woman ever yet really understood any man. But they all want to, and they can't, and that is the supreme tragedy of human existence. And the most common of all the tragedies resulting from marriage.

A man and a wife who love each other yearn for complete and perfect understanding. They desire the impossible, for there's a mysterious barrier between human beings, and an unsurmountable wall between the sexes. Neither the barrier nor the wall can be hurdled or leveled. But brides and grooms can never perceive this because they do not wish to. So distrust arises and jealousy grows.

"How much happier human beings would be," I thought, "if we would all accept the barriers just as we accept the color of the beloved's eyes or the shape of the adored one's nose! Instead of this, Archer's heroic denial had precipitated this train of thought, but always, in the back of my mind, day and night, whatever my task, was the word about my husband."

Morrison had promised, but no news came. Daddy and I met on deck every morning and Travers, the young physician, translated the Mexican paper for us.

It was a comfort to get the news even in the Mexican version, Daddy said. He could read the truth between the lines. War between Mexico and the United States was once averted. But Daddy wondered if the average American citizen could interpret events well enough to know that war with Mexico was always smoldering, always at the point of exploding.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

Los Angeles, Feb. 12. To the Editor:—We have spent this afternoon in Sycamore Park at the Wisconsin picnic, which is given annually for the Badgers who are sojourning in this part of Southern California. The day was perfect and with 10,000 were present, representing nearly every county in the state. Appleton was represented by some twenty-five or thirty persons among whom we recognized, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thom, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rhodes and daughter, Prof. and Mrs. Otto Kuehnstead and daughter, Prof. and Mrs. Rodgers, Mrs. Elta Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Uhlman, Mrs. Gaynor and Miss Cathlin, Mrs. Vera LeRoy Cook, Mrs. Adams and Mr. Slater and Mrs. Sherburne.

These persons seemed to be well posted regarding Appleton news and referred frequently to what they had seen in the Post-Crescent. The consolidation was commended on all sides and the general opinion is that the consolidation will be better for the city, the people and the publishers.

The rush from the east to California is not diminishing. Overcharge and profiteering are everywhere and tourists are dissatisfied. The railroads are advising people to get elsewhere another year and continue to do so till the people here repent of their greed and dishonesty.

Los Angeles has grown by leaps and bounds until it has a population of some 700,000, but conditions are sure to change soon unless financial matters right themselves. Real estate dealers and property owners have joined hands to rob the new comers. They have a saying, "We live off the suckers and pick the crop while it is green."

The "flu" is getting worse, so far as the number of cases is concerned, but the disease is generally in a mild form. It seems to be an importation from the east for many of the people are sick when they arrive here. There has been some talk of a quarantine against the tourists, but "their money talks."

The writer has not yet succeeded in getting passage to Hawaii, but is hoping to get away early in March.

Your announcement of the death of Rev. J. H. Paul greatly surprised and shocked his friends here. He was an earnest Christian gentleman, whose highest aim was to make the world better.

NOT TO REBUILD FRENCH TOWNS

Laon, France—Fifteen villages in the Aisne district, destroyed by war, will never be rebuilt. There are 17 towns in the Marne district which will be abandoned, and probably 100 in all of France. For many years, at least, the soil on which the villages stood will not even be tilled. It will become a permanent no man's land.

According to government advices, the sites of these villages are too dangerous to be used again. In order to avoid loss of life the government has purchased the land on which the villages stood and will keep possession of it until it can be made safe.

These sites are the ones often fought over, on which the ground has been turned over and over again, burying explosives of all kinds to unknown depths. There is no trace of buildings left in the 15 villages, so the refugees faced more than the usual hardships. They returned, however, and lived in the worst makeshift caves and dugouts.

Only signs maintained by the government mark the sites of the villages warning people of the lurking dangers.—Stars and Stripes.

WHEN THE COAL SLIDES DOWN

A Song Without Music
 Of all sweet sounds that meet the ear
 And drive out thoughts of care and fear,

The sweetest noise we ever hear—
 When the coal slides down!
 Cho: Hear it rattle down the chute
 With a sort of raucous hoot,
 Hear it sliding in the bin,
 How it makes us sit and grin
 When the coal slides down!

Let the old northwest wind roar,
 Let the frost gnaw through the door,
 All our troubles now are o'er
 When the coal slides down!
 Cho: Hear it rattle, etc.

But the bin is grim and still
 And coal is rather chilly
 Now we'll wait and shiver till,
 Till the coal slides down,
 Cho: Hear it rattle, etc.

V. A. S.

Not wishing to disagree with the sweet singer, V. A. S., we nevertheless feel impelled to incorporate an addendum to the above which provides an opportunity to say that which has been closest the heart for many days:

With anthracite 12 bucks the ton,
 I have no unalloyed fun,
 If music that, give me a gun—
 When the cold slides down.
 Cho: Hear it rattle in the bin,
 Music? Gosh, no! Just a din;
 Growing is a southland urge,
 Music? Gosh, no! Just a dirge.

We had no idea that quarries were proving so profitable until we received our latest load of rocks painted black for which we were charged something in excess of "12 bucks the ton."

"I KILLED WHEN SOLDIERS FIRE IN LIMERICK RIOT," says a headline, and we are much surprised as the linerick is the vilest form of misanthropy and ought to cause a riot any time.

The High Cost of Sickness—VII.

Economy of the H. M. F. B.

More effective and in any case less extravagant than the dangerous dopes that masquerade as "cold and gripe" remedies, is the hot mustard foot bath in the early stage of any acute respiratory infection.

In order to obtain the best results the H. M. F. B. should be taken in bed, which implies a good nurse. Let us remark here that the best course one can possibly follow when coming down with such an illness is probably to get into bed and have a trained nurse to give the hot mustard foot bath, even if she remains only an hour or two. Any good nurse could show you how to administer a H. M. F. B. much better than I can tell you how, but this is the usual technique:

Strip the patient and put him in bed between blankets. Give him a large drink of anything very hot—hot lemonade, hot broth, or even hot water. Half fill a foot tub or other roomy receptacle with water a trifle hotter than your hand will endure, and stir a tablespoonful of mustard flour in it. Let the patient lie on his back with his knees flexed and his feet in the tub under the blankets. Pile on several blankets. If he sweats about the water burning his feet, smear right back at him. If he smiles, smile back. Give him his due. But keep adding a dipperful of hotter water now and then and dipping out this dipperful of the mustard water. This keeps the patient interested every minute.

As soon as the bath is under way, wring out a cloth in cold water and place it on the patient's forehead. Change this from time to time, to keep him from becoming overheated. Keep the bath going fifteen to thirty minutes. Steady the tub with one hand under the blankets if the patient is nervous, and keep laying the water up over the legs. Give him another pint of hot drink before the bath is over. Do not permit him to throw off any of the blankets. It is necessary to be a trifle mean and determined about this, because just before perspiration becomes established the patient becomes strangely nervous to uncover and get cool. Keep the covers tucked close about his neck and let him tell his troubles to the Marines.

Remove the foot-tub, dry the feet, and substitute a hot bottle for the feet.

Give the patient now all the cold water he cares for. But see that he remains under the covers for an hour, whether he perspires or not.

At the end of an hour or two, remove the blankets, dry the patient with towels, put on a nice dry nightgown, and kiss him goodnight—on your fingers. Let him sleep it off.

Should Mrs. Camp happen in to assure her there is no danger now, even if the patient uncovers. However, if she is worried, you may ease her mind by bathing the patient with alcohol to "close the pores" again—it will do no particular harm one way or the other.

The H. M. F. B. is equally good for inflammation of the ear, and for the relief of the pain of so-called "ulcerated tooth."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
 Hernia and Exercise.

I am 49½ years old and have a slight hernia. Can I safely do the somersaults and take the setting-up exercises you recommend for sedentary persons? If so, should I wear my truss while doing so? (C. W.)

ANSWER—Ask your doctor. In a general way I think that setting-up exercises and somersaults would be rather beneficial for one with hernia. The truss should be worn all the time, if at all. At least it should be worn constantly while you are out of bed.

Girls Should Not Diet.
 I am sixteen years old, weigh 155 pounds, and 61 inches tall. Would like to lose about thirty pounds. Could you send me a diet by which I could lose that amount? (R. H. L.)

ANSWER—No. Girls under eighteen should never attempt to reduce weight. In my opinion, unless under the personal supervision of their physicians.

Low Blood Pressure.
 Is there any specific treatment for blood pressure? My pressure is 102 and if there is any treatment that will increase this I want to know about it. (N. C.)

ANSWER—Low blood pressure is noted in various diseases, such as pulmonary tuberculosis, exophthalmic goitre, excessive indulgence in tobacco, Addison's disease (degeneration of the adrenal glands). Consequently no specific treatment is applicable. Indeed, neither high blood pressure nor low blood pressure are treated as a disease condition independent of the cause in a given case.

Spain and France Shipping Olive Oil.

Olive oil, which was scarce during the war, and which can not yet be obtained from Italy except in small amounts, is now being imported from Spain and France in sufficient volume to meet the usual demands of this country. Its quality is equal to that of Italian oils.

The largest quantity of the oil now comes from Spain. In 1914 the United States imported only 362,489 gallons of olive oil from Spain, according to statistics furnished by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, but during the first eight months of the year 1919 there were imported into this country from Spain 6,608,468 gallons, or nearly twenty times as much as five years ago. From Italy in 1914 there were imported 4,319,567 gallons, but during the first eight months of the current year only 23,851 gallons came from Italy. This being less than 1 per cent of the importation from Italy five years ago.

More olive oil is now coming from France than from Italy, but the quantity coming from France is still much below the prewar volume. In 1914 this country imported 919,858 gallons from France; during the first eight months of last year 94,238 gallons came from France, which is just about one-tenth of the prewar volume.

The total amount of olive oil imported into the United States from all countries for the year 1914 was 6,217,560 gallons, while the total importations from all countries for the first eight months of the year 1919 were 6,742,710 gallons, or approximately half a million gallons more than was imported in 1914.

Famous Collection of Birds is Found.
 For 30 years the famous Audubon collection of North American birds has been lost. Although search was made by many collectors, the collection which was the lifetime work of John James Audubon, nothing was discovered of its whereabouts until recently, when it was unearthed in the Appleton cabinet at Amherst college.

The collection was originally sold by the Audubon estate for $600 to Ward's national science establishment in Chicago. It was purchased by H. H. Farnum, who 46 years ago presented it to Amherst college. After a few years Farnum sold the collection to the ornithological department of Amherst and for many years there was no curator. Lately it has been decided to establish a department and a curator has been appointed.

During a search of the remains of the burned collection of birds, the Audubon collection of the birds of North America was discovered, practically intact, and it is tentatively decided to send the whole of it to the director of the Harvard museum of comparative zoology for examination and to have it put into shape for exhibition.

In the collection there are supposed to be more than 800 birds, from which it is believed that Audubon painted the illustrations in his edition of "The Birds of North America."—Boston Globe.

Practically half of the 1919 exports to Germany were shipped during November and December.

RADIUM AND X-RAY USED TOGETHER SUCCESSFULLY

Although discovered just one year later than the X-ray, radium did not take its place in therapeutics until some time after the Roentgen rays were in active use. In fact it was the curative qualities revealed in the X-ray that brought about the use of radium.

Roentgen discovered the X-ray purely by accident while experimenting with a low pressure discharge tube. He found that the rays from the tube penetrated paper or any substance including the tissues of his own hand.

For a number of years the X-ray was used by physicians and surgeons to locate fractured or diseased bones, as well as disarranged organs of the body and growths affecting the organs. Later it was discovered that the fluorescent rays from the Roentgen tube had distinctive curative qualities and the device became largely used in therapeutics.

During the growing application and study of X-ray treatment, it was noted that the light cast by radium was of the same distinctive kind as that from the X-ray when it was applied, its experimenters were repaid by distinct results which in many ways were more favorable than those of the X-ray.

The two are now used jointly by specialists throughout the country. They find that the gamma rays of the radium are stronger than the strongest rays of the Roentgen tube. The X-ray was in many instances hard to apply. It had to be applied direct from the surface and did not set in to direct touch with the seat of many troubles requiring treatment.

Radium was substantially different. It was possible to place the substance in containers and apply them to all parts requiring treatment, in many cases it was applied internally by insertion in the natural orifices of the body. It was readily controlled and could as readily be placed adjacent to the part requiring treatment.

We now find both the X-ray and radium in general use in the clinics and hospitals of the larger centers, both of them doing excellent work and both with their own particular field of efficiency.

The X-ray or Roentgen tube is in general use with practitioners in all parts of the world using it. The cost of the equipment is not high but the practitioner is rarely competent to use it fully until he has taken an extended course in X-ray therapeutics.

To properly administer to cases requiring radium treatment, the practitioner must likewise make a careful study and obtain his experience under skilled radium specialists. Not only this but he must put enough into his preparation financially to provide for comparatively large quantities of radium for actual practice.

KROMER WANTS TO START NEW LEAGUE

KAUKAUNA BASEBALL IMPRESARIO BELIEVES HOME PLAYERS WILL MAKE BIG HIT.

Stormy Kromer, who considers himself to be "some" baseball executive, is planning to form an "opposition" league in the Fox River valley which he will call the "Fox River Valley Home Players' League." His plan is to form teams in Appleton, Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh, Green Bay, Fond du Lac and De Pere and hold the team personnel strictly to men living in those cities. He asserts that the teams will be backed up by strong industrial organizations.

Mr. Kromer, of course, would like to be president of that league, inasmuch as he is its chief booster. No other candidates have been mentioned thus far.

If the league is formed it will be run in opposition to the recently organized Fox River Valley League, of which George Hogriever is president. Both leagues cannot exist in the valley and therefore it behooves the fans to determine at once which one they will support. Kromer plans to use only home town players, whereas the other league will be semi-professional and will import players necessary to strengthen the organization. There is no doubt but what the semi-professional team will present the better brand of baseball and undoubtedly will receive the support of the fans.

MUST DEFEAT SHAWANO TO GET IN TOURNAMENT

High School Cagers Need an Imposing String of Victories to Insure Entrance in Oshkosh Meeting

Coach Vincent's high school basketball quintet is set for the tilt with Shawano at the armory Friday night. Dope favors an Appleton victory, though the visitors are confident of securing revenge for the defeat by the locals at Shawano a few weeks ago.

The local highs are making every effort to finish the season with an imposing string of victories in order to secure entrance to the sectional tournament at Oshkosh. The tourney will be limited to eight teams, with Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Neenah, Menasha, Green Bay, and several other strong teams in the district, the locals will have a hard fight on their hands.

LAWRENCE HOPES TO WIN LAST HOME GAME

Coach Beyer's Lawrence college basketball squad is making every effort to wind up the home season with a victory over Carroll at Alexander gymnasium Friday night. The game will begin at seven o'clock.

The Lawrence mentor is confident that the Blue and White can defeat the Carrolls on the home floor. Playing the last game at home with a big crowd to back them, the locals should put a hard fight.

NEENAH AND MENASHA TO PLAY FEBRUARY 27

Neenah and Menasha highs will play at the Neenah armory February 27, and not next Friday as was announced yesterday. SIGN CARPENTIER FIRST, KEARNS' TIP

JACK DEMPSEY'S MANAGER ASSEKTS HE WILL NOT SIGN UP UNTIL FRENCHEMAN ARRIVES

By Henry L. Farrell
By United Press Licensed Wire
New York—"Go out and get Carpentier, then see us."

This is Jack Kearns' tip to promoters. Asked to shed a little light on the fight situation that might enable one to separate the "sheep from the goats" in the flock of promoters claiming the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, Jack Kearns wired today to the writer that:

Jack Dempsey has not signed with any promoter, he has not seriously considered any offers and he will not sign to defend his championship title until the arrival in the United States of Georges Carpentier.

"I have not signed with Rickard or any other promoter," Kearns said. "I have received offers from Fox, Cochran and several other promoters but I have not considered any of them until I could be absolutely sure that some promoter of responsibility has Carpentier's signature."

"The only offer I have received from Tex. Rickard was a wire asking me not to close a deal for the fight until I received his offer. Of the many offers I have received I think the one of William Fox is the most sincere. He, as well as any other promoter must first show me Carpentier's signature before I will consider anything. Dempsey will insist upon the fight being staged in America. He will be engaged in Los Angeles for another month in motion picture work and then will be ready to fight. I will not take any offers seriously until Carpentier arrives in America. Then we can get down to real business and settle it very quickly."

That, precisely is what M. Deschamps, manager of the French fighter, said recently when asked to show his cards. At that time he declared Carpentier was "foot loose" and would wait until he reached America to sign.

MILWAUKEE SEEGARS LOST TO TWIN CITY CARDINALS

The Milwaukee Seegars met defeat at the hands of the Neenah Cardinals in the basketball game last evening at the S. A. Cook armory, Neenah. The final score was 40 to 22. Superior team work and the inability of the Cream City five to solve the line-up of the Neenah quintet gave the victory to the latter.

In the curtain raiser between the Menasha Maroons and the Neenah Jacks, Menasha carried off the laurels by one point, the final score being 29 to 28.

A number of Appleton people were at Neenah to attend the game and enjoyed the dance which followed.

Manitowoc.—Omro, Wis., isn't a metropolis by any means but the little burg captured top honors in the singles competition in the state tourney on Tuesday. The credit for the boost belongs to H. Helwig of that town who shot a score of 611 in the individual event. The count did not displace any of the first eight leaders but it was the only tally registered on Tuesday that is worthy of any special mention.

The doubles performances were on a par with those in the singles. There were no exciting marks and the best accomplished by any one duo was 1,148, turned in by J. Epp and H. Lucas of Milwaukee. Kenosha came through quite strong in the two man event and three counts of better than 1,100 were hung up. T. Cross and R. Bentz tallied 1,121. L. Oile and A. Kirsch, 1,112, and W. Schmidt and W. Plummer, 1,133. R. Dewey and A. Hoffman led the Antigo, Wis., couples on Tuesday with 1,124.

The Rupings No. 1 team of Fond du Lac was high after the first shifts Tuesday night. The quintet turned in the score of 2,681.

DELAY PROBE IN WOOD ALCOHOL CASE AT ELOY

Entire City is in Mourning Following Tragic Death of Two Popular People—Federal Probe To Start

Eloy, Wis.—This little junction city was in mourning Tuesday night for two of its most popular residents, who died as result of wood alcohol poisoning, following an informal party Saturday night.

The flak on the city hall was raised to half mast in their honor.

The victims, Raymond Hart, war hero, and son of an Eloy banker, and Mrs. Nellie Ward, wife of Henry Ward, well known Chicago and Northwestern conductor and wealthy, will be laid to rest in the family burial lots here.

The funeral of Hart will be held on Wednesday at the Eloy post of the American legion, of which he was commander, in charge of the services. Mrs. Ward will be buried with rites in the Eloy Catholic church, of which she was organist, Thursday morning.

Double investigation of the tragedy was temporarily delayed on Tuesday, because of the hysterical condition of two victims of the poisoning, Celia and Mabel Larsen. They were unable to attend the John Doe hearing, set by District Attorney Clinton Price for Tuesday.

In addition to the inquiry by Price, which will be resumed on Friday, the federal prohibition department at Milwaukee has sent Agent Martin to this city to make an investigation.

Prosecutor Price has found the remnants of the whiskey that caused the deaths of Mrs. Ward and Hart. A small quantity of the liquor found in a quart bottle in the Hart residence will be used by him as an exhibit at the trial. He says it had a strong odor of wood alcohol.

SETTLE LABOR TROUBLE THROUGH COMPROMISE

The labor difficulties at the plant of Kurtz & Root have been adjusted by a compromise. The machinists asked for a raise of ten cents an hour and were given five cents. One employee who objected to accepting the offer of the company started a disturbance and was given a severe punishment in front of the plant by one of his co-workers, it was said.

An amazingly vivid picture of the night life of Paris—of the "spenders" in garish cafes, of the strange "half-world" of the fierce Apaches.

Two women. One, rich, frivolous, and worse; seeking the sparkle of life in the pleasure palaces of the Boulevards; longing for love from the man who had tired of her.
Another, poor, unfortunate, seeking escape from the Apache "king" who was blighting her, body and soul.

One night, these two women meet. The good one, trembling from a wild Apache dance. The other, crushed with shame and disillusionment. When the two men, their "masters," meet, two worlds of Paris rush together!
The rest is a story you won't soon forget. Come!

EAGLES RETAIN PLACE IN FACTORY LEAGUE

A crowd of 150 watched the basketball game between the Eagle Manufacturing Company and the Telulah mill in the inter-factory league game last night in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. It was the best game so far in the inter-factory league, the Telulah mill putting up a desperate fight to defeat the leaders. The outcome of the game was in doubt up to the last ten minutes of play, when a spurt by the Eagle team clinched the game, 28 to 17. Elmer Dunn refereed.

New London Edison's defeated the Northern Paper Mills basketball team at Green Bay Tuesday night by a 19 to 15 score. The game was close and hard-fought thruout.

FRENCH MEMORIALS WILL BE GIVEN TO NEXT OF KIN SUNDAY

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES IN HONOR OF SOLDIER DEAD WILL BE HELD IN MEMORIAL CHAPEL

One of the most impressive services ever held in this city in memory of Appleton's honored dead in the war will take place at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

The French government has prepared individual memorials, signed by the president of France and bearing the name of each American soldier who lost his life in the war. These are to be distributed through the American Legion posts throughout the country on Washington's birthday, February 22. Each family of the dead is to receive one, and 36 will be given out at the services here. The Oney Johnston post of the American Legion is preparing a beautifully impressive service with an exceptional program. Plans are being made to have the families of the deceased soldiers, the military and other patriotic organizations attend in a body, and it is the desire of the Legion that the people of Appleton pay their respects by filling the chapel to its capacity. Detailed announcement of the program will be made later.

WEEK OF EVANGELISM AT LAWRENCE COLLEGE

Dr. E. J. Helms of Morgan Memorial chapel of Boston, Mass., is expected here Friday to take charge of the week of Evangelism to be conducted at Lawrence college, Feb. 22-28. The purpose of the movement is to stimulate the idealization of school life by the student and to develop firmer loyalty to moral principles.

An opening talk will be given by Dr. Helm Friday morning in chapel. He will speak Sunday night at the joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Meetings will be held every night following in the Lawrence Memorial chapel at which Dr. Helm will be the chief speaker.

LESS THAN HALF OF COUNTY ALLOTMENT IN DRIVE IS RAISED

MUST SHOW MORE SPEED IF $15,000 FOR ARMENIAN RELIEF IS TO BE SUBSCRIBED HERE

Reports to the Near East Relief headquarters are encouraging to some respects, but the drive must move swiftly and a lot more must be pledged if the total of $15,000, the cost of supporting the 250 orphans allotted to this county, is to be reached.

The women are doing nicely with their booths in the banks and stores, the total of their receipts this morning reaching $668.30 in cash and pledges. In addition to the reports of yesterday, the following pledges are announced:

Masons' Union	$ 10.00
Painters' Union	20.00
Trades & Labor Council	25.00
Wire Weavers Union	60.00
Tourist Club	140.00

Reports are incomplete at this stage of the drive, but the total estimate of pledges and cash paid in to the headquarters amounts to $5970.74. If this proves a fairly complete report, then Outagamie county must take a new hold on the campaign and strive to the utmost to reach the desired goal before the drive is over.

An error was made in reporting the contribution of the Sunshine club yesterday as $25. The amount should have been $5.

It is expected that by Thursday reports will have been filed showing exactly what the status of the campaign is. Those who are not approached by solicitors may make their pledges voluntarily at any of the banks or downtown stores where stations are maintained.

Walter Eiler is at present business manager of the Lawrentian and was business manager of the 1919 Ariel.

MILD WINTER IS ENJOYED BY NORTH DAKOTA FARMERS

L. D. WILKINSON, FORMER RESIDENT OF APPLETON, TELLS ABOUT WESTERN CONDITIONS

L. D. Wilkinson of Willison, North Dakota, a paper hanger who left here twenty years ago, arrived in Appleton this morning, where he is spending the day. He is on his way to Chilton, to visit his brother.

Mr. Wilkinson went to Leopolis, Wis., when he left Appleton, where he made his home for 14 years. From there he went to Willison, where his two sons, Fred and Lloyd were located. Willison is sixty miles from the Montana boundary line and is in the heart of a rich farming district. The two sons own a section of land, while the father has a quarter section. Until last summer they were engaged in raising cattle for beef, but are now changing over into the dairy business.

"The weather has been so mild that we have permitted our cattle and horses to run all winter," said Mr. Wilkinson. "The snow has not interfered with them getting all the grass they needed. No matter how deep, horses, like sheep, will scratch away the snow, but cattle require feeding. The dairy business is just developing and is a very profitable branch of farming. Butter at present is worth a dollar a pound, while eggs are selling at $1.25 per dozen.

"The land is all taken up in western North Dakota and is rapidly increasing in value. There are no more homestead lands and I would advise any young man with limited capital to purchase a farm before the price gets beyond him. All kinds of crops can be raised and it is only last year that my sons cleared $1,000 on ten acres of flax. Wheat can also be raised and is usually a good crop unless the summer happens to be a dry one. Wages for farm hands average about $60 per month which includes board and lodging.

SUSAN ANTHONY WAS AREAL PROPHETESS

AMERICAN LEADER IN SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT PREDICTED ARRIVAL OF VOTES FOR WOMEN

By Carrie Chapman Catt
By United Press Leased Wire
(Chicago)—Susan B. Anthony, whose centenary the National American Woman Suffrage Association celebrated yesterday, once predicted that by her one-hundredth birthday anniversary the women of the United States would be voters. Impossible as the prophecy seemed in that day, she, whose motto was "failure is impossible" spoke more truly than she knew.

Now that victory is ending the long fight one of the last official acts of the national association in this fifty-first and final convention was the presentation of distinguished service certificates to those who have signally aided the suffrage cause.

Every one who has ever done the slightest deed or given the smallest sum has a part in the victory we are celebrating at this convention.

Both men and women are among those honored yesterday. The list was carefully selected by representatives of each state and the number of decorations limited according to the congressional representation of each state.

was learned from authoritative sources that Premier Nitti has told Premiers Lloyd George and Miller and that he cannot return to Rome this time without some definite decision as to the disposal of the disputed Adriatic territory. Nitti, according to this information said he was tired of running to and fro between London and Paris and that a "show down" was necessary if he was to retain control of the Italian government.

The position of France and Great Britain was described as that of the man between the upper and the lower millstone. It was inevitable, officials pointed out, that they must offend either Italy, the United States or Jugo-Slavia. The two leading European powers, officials said were confronted with the delicate problem of choosing the lesser of three evils.

To correspondents here the rapidity which has marked changes in the situation was bewildering. Those who have followed the situation closely, interviewing the various allied leaders almost daily during the various stages of the controversy, have seen all their predictions sooner or later overturned.

Some British leaders today were convinced that the only solution is to submit the entire matter to the league of nations. There was a general impression it would furnish a fine test case for the sincerity with which the nations have accepted the league inasmuch as four of the signatory countries are involved.

In other quarters there was a growing conviction that Great Britain will go to almost any length to placate President Wilson and prevent a breach with the United States, working on the principle it would be better to incur enmity of both Jugo-Slavia and Italy than lose the future co-operation of America.

Nearly all the press emphasized this point, urging utmost caution in the Allied reply. The Globe summoned up conservative opinion by asserting that, in their anxiety to satisfy the aspirations of Italy and Jugo-Slavia, Great Britain and France for a time seemed to have forgotten America's interest in Fiume. President Wilson obviously "is touchy," the newspaper said, adding the Allies would "find it wise to reckon with that fact."

Expect Allies Will Yield
Washington—The Allies will yield to President Wilson's stand on Fiume and will at least postpone execution of their plan for settlement of the Adriatic problem, it was predicted at the state department today.

The answer of the Allies was expected to be received at the state department today.

It is believed to be couched in most conciliatory terms. The Allied answer, it is expected by officials will declare that continued participation of the United States in the Adriatic settlement and other European affairs is most desirable.

There are conflicting reports today as to the character of Wilson's original note. After the white house had stated, through Secretary Tamm, that the note was only ten lines in length and was not a threat to withdraw from European affairs, a state department official said the note contained an intimation that Wilson might have to consider keeping America out of the league of nations unless the Allies abandoned their proposal plan to settlement. The white house and the state department appeared to be putting different interpretations on it.

Only The Hoover lifts the rug and flutters it over 1,000 times a minute on an air cushion

90 Per Cent of All House Dirt Hides in Carpetings!

Only The Hoover thoroughly removes this carpet dirt, the 90% and hardest part of house-cleaning. Therein lies the reason why The Hoover is the largest selling electric cleaner in the world.

For The Hoover beats out all nap-wearing, embedded grit which defies sweeping and air suction. The Hoover electrically sweeps up all clinging litter which laughs at air suction. Then The Hoover suctions up this loosened dirt and the surface dirt.

The Hoover performs these three essential operations as speedily and easily as other cleaners merely surface-clean and partially sweep.

Also, with air attachments, The Hoover removes that last 10% of house-dirt which lightly roosts on furniture, draperies, etc.

Popularity, for twelve years, has exceeded Hoover output, forced an ever-increasing production of The Hoover, but in spite of the fact that 3 times as many will be made during this year as last, demand still exceeds the supply. We advise ordering in advance to insure desired delivery.

Save Money Now And Head Off The Hard Times That Are

Wage Earners Can Prolong Their Prosperity by Adding to Available Capital—Money Situation is Natural Result of Over-Accumulation of Wealth in Hands of Few

(Special to Post-Crescent)
America's Foremost Business Statistician
By Roger W. Babson

Wellesley, Mass.—Americans should not be surprised at the foreign exchange situation. The reason the mark, franc and lire are so cheap is because they have been made so cheap. Paper money is just like flowers or anything else in this world. What there is a lot of we don't care for. If roses were as common as daisies they would sell at the same price. If we had as many apples as we have potatoes they would be as cheap. The truth is that there are nineteen times as many marks in Germany today as before the war. Also there are six times as many francs in France. There are seven times as many lire in Italy. Another reason why exchange is low is because it is for the interest of men in Europe who owe money to have money depreciated. The cheaper the goods which they export and they pay their labor in depreciated currency. Depreciated money is bad for the man who has got a lot of money, but a fine thing for the man who owes a lot. It is the old story of the Mills of the Gods grinding slowly, but exceedingly fine. The bankers of Europe thought they made a lot of money out of the war but they are now finding out that this money is of little value. We profited from the war and accumulated the majority of the gold supply of the world, but we can't keep it as a nation any more than a family or individual can keep their money indefinitely. It is said that there are only three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves. Statistics show that this applies to nations almost as it does to individuals. Of course, business is going to fall off in this country. It is only just to the rest of the world that we should now give them a chance. We have been manufacturing goods for the entire world while Europe has been at war. It is now only natural and right that Europe should have its turn. This means that profits in this country are at their maximum. The days of profiteering on the part of employers, wage-earners and merchants are approaching an end. There will be no fall in prices for a while yet because many orders are still unfilled. When the tide turns, however, the sheep will run just as panic-strickenly downward as they are now running upward. When prices are going up they get a momentum which carries them beyond their normal point. When they are going down they get a similar momentum which takes them beyond their true value. This is especially true at the present time when so many merchants are ordering more goods than they really expect to sell, on the assumption that they won't get delivered all those they have ordered. This means that there is going to be a great cancellation of orders when the tide finally turns. There is nothing for the average man to be worried about in the present, but everyone should start in to save money, to prepare for the hard times ahead. Some people say that saving money will hurt business. This is a lie. Money is never idle. When you put money into the bank instead of into cash it is still put at work and it still gives employment. There is no fear of hurting business as a whole, by saving money. The best way to delay the hard times is by saving money. Houses cannot now be built, machinery cannot now be constructed, roads cannot now be improved, water power cannot be developed because there isn't the capital to do it. If the workmen of America would take to the banks the money which they now spend on phonographs, jewelry, movies and flimsy, good-for-nothing clothes, the money could be used by the banks for building houses, making machinery, improving the roads, and developing water power and forever be a great source of wealth. The best thing the wage-workers can do to prolong their prosperity is to add to the amount of available capital. The saving worker creates employment for himself as well as assuring his family something for a rainy day. A dollar saved today will be worth two dollars five or ten years from now, when the cost of living has declined to what it inevitably will.

STRIKES CAUSE BIG LOSSES IN BRITAIN

ARBITRATION, HOWEVER, HAS RESULTED IN BIG WAGE INCREASES FOR ENGLISH WORKERS

By Harold E. Bechtol
(Special to Post-Crescent)
London—The appalling cost of strikes and lockouts is shown by British figures for 1919. An average of about 3,000,000 working days a month were lost through strikes and lockouts in the first full year of peace. Taking $5 as an average wage, this means that British workers lost $600,000 every working day last year, or 180 millions. Through strikes and lockouts, adding lost markets and unfilled contracts to actual loss of products, it is much greater. A bright side of the 1919 record is that largely by arbitration—Six million British working people obtained increases in wages amounting to about $10,000,000 a week; and Five and a half millions secured reductions in hours totaling more than 36,000,000 hours a week. Brighter still, for Britain, is the ever-broadening conviction among the workers, employers and the public that the machinery for settling disputes peaceably must be improved and used. Employers and labor, both touchy to public opinion, enter 1920 in a spirit of cooperation, seldom evidenced in Britain last year. Unemployment is rapidly decreasing as Britain gets back to peace-time work. On the one side, employers are widely accepting the "partner" attitude toward the workers. On the other side, the workers flout the threat of a "lightning strike" less frequently. Nationalization of mines and railways is the big labor fight for 1920. It is beginning now. But there is no talk of strikes. Leaders voluntarily have pledged themselves first of all to wage their campaign by methods that do not incur such a terrible cost.

STUDENT PERISHES IN A BLIZZARD IN MOUNTAINS

Companion Nearly Dies Trying to Save Life of Princeton Student—Caught in Storm Near Top of Mountain

By United Press Leased Wire
Dublin, N. H.—Charlton Reynolds, of New York, Harvard senior whose attempts to save the life of Charles McVeagh, Jr., of New York were unavailing, when they were caught in a blizzard while climbing Mount Monadnock today was rapidly recovering from exposure. McVeagh, graduate student at Princeton and son of the counsel for the United States Steel Corporation and Reynolds left the McVeagh estate here Saturday for a jaunt up the mountain. Misled by the warm weather they wore no overcoats, hats or gloves. When within a mile of the summit, they were caught in the blizzard and turned back. It became colder and they were lost in the darkness of the early evening. When Fred Nettleton, caretaker on the McVeagh estate, found them, after firing his revolver, as he searched the mountain side and being answered by Reynolds, McVeagh was dead of exposure and exhaustion. He had collapsed during the night and his companion had done everything to protect him from the cold, without success.

COAL PRICES BOOSTED 14 PER CENT SINCE STRIKE

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—The public is paying the 14 per cent increase in wages awarded bituminous coal miners, Frank Bergen, representing the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey today told the senate committee investigating the coal situation. Bergen said the wage raise has increased the price of coal 30 cents a ton to his company, which he said uses 1,500,000 tons annually. "That is passed on the public," he said, "either directly or through an impairment of our credit which makes it impossible for us to borrow money for extensions and betterments, thus making our service less valuable to the public."

TURKS WON'T BE FORCED OUT OF THEIR CAPITAL

By United Press Leased Wire
London—Admiral Dorobeck, British commissioner at Constantinople has been instructed to notify the Turkish government that the Turks will be allowed to remain in Constantinople, it was learned officially here today. The Allied commission, however, warned the Turks that unless they cease persecuting Armenians the treaty will be modified. The Allies have agreed indefinitely to internationalize the Dardanelles and possibly the Bosphorus, it was announced officially. The decision to leave the Turks in Europe, it was emphasized, is provisional upon their treatment of the Armenians and other minorities.

FARMERS ORGANIZED IN FORTY TEXAS COUNTIES

By United Press Leased Wire
Houston, Texas—Texas politics may soon feel the force of a new factor—the combined voting power of the Farmers' Non-Partisan League and labor unions. The announcement that farmers were organized in more than 40 counties of the state came as a surprise to politicians here who were unaware of that activity. Within 24 hours after the publication of this news, a labor meeting was held, at which delegates were appointed to cooperate with the farmers at the coming special election in Harris County, March 4. At that time three representatives and a senator will be chosen for the Legislature. This will mark the first real effort of the Non-Partisan League to break into a big city election in the south. Politicians are wondering how extensive the farmers' organizations and union cooperation will be in the state. The league does not take in organized labor, but frequently combines for political purposes.

USE MOTOR TRUCKS TO END FREIGHT TIES-UPS

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Transportation by motor truck will solve the freight congestion problem, J. C. Amos, Elgin, Ill., traffic manager for the Illinois Retail Hardware Association in convention here said today. The convention discussed plans for motor truck service to handle hardware shipments and eliminate serious delays caused by the present rail congestion. Shortage of materials has made it impossible for hardware manufacturers to meet the demand for their goods, Amos said. There is no prospect for a drop in prices until this condition is remedied, he added.

PORTO RICAN HOMES CANNOT BE CALLED THINGS OF BEAUTY

KIMBERLY YOUNG WOMAN WHO TAUGHT IN PORTO RICO DE-SCRIBES THE HAB-ITATIONS.

"The home of the native in Porto Rico is one of the simplest structures one could find anywhere," says Miss Ella Griesbach in an article published in "The School Teacher" of the Kimberly state graded school. Miss Griesbach taught at the American school at Central Aguirre, Porto Rico, last year and has many interesting stories to tell about that island.

"Because the home is so different from even the poorest found here in the United States, you might be interested in knowing something about it.

"These are not found in the villages or cities, but a drive of two or three miles into the country will bring one to a real rural community. Sometimes the group of huts is situated on the banks of a small stream, or more often near the foot of the mountains.

"The hut is rather striking because of its lack of beauty. It is usually made of a fibrous reed which is interwoven with rope to form the sides of the house. Four parts serve as the framework for the hut.

"The roof is thatched and shaped so that during the rainy season the water can easily run from it. The entire structure is raised about four feet from the ground. The reason is not for protection against poisonous reptiles as in many tropical countries, for there are no snakes in Porto Rico. It is often said that the space formed by the elevation is made especially to serve as a home for the chickens, dogs, goats and sometimes even the family donkey, should the family be fortunate enough to own one.

"There is still another style of home not quite as popular as the fibrous structure. This is made of the soap boxes and any odds and ends of boards which the natives have been fortunate enough to collect. The structure somewhat resembles, from the outside, a large patched quilt. It is not an uncommon occurrence to find 'Sunny Monday' in large letters adorning the walls of these homes.

"Every native is his own carpenter. It is almost necessary, for those of the poorer class earn no more than twenty-five cents per day.

"The surroundings of the home, except for a few trees, are usually bare and unattractive. Perhaps the reason for this is the large number of goats. It would be of no use to plant shrubbery of any sort, for the goats would relish such delicacy only too well.

"One native woman had a very peculiar ornament near her house. It was a dry limb stuck into the ground. Upon its dead branches whole egg shells were fastened, as many as the branch would hold. The dry, dark limbs with the white balls on them never failed to attract some passer-by's attention.

"A home like this certainly would not appeal to us, but the native is well contented with his lot. He always seems happy and is ever ready to greet the 'Americane' with a broad, wholesome grin."

APPLETON MACHINE GUN COMPANY AMONG LEADERS

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Madison, Wis.—The state-wide week drive for recruits in the Wisconsin National Guard ended with twenty-three organizations over the top, including fifteen companies of infantry and machine gun, four troops of cavalry, one supply company of artillery and two companies of the supply train. One of the most gratifying things about the reports is that the service men are returning to the guard in large numbers.

The last infantry companies to report going over are Milwaukee, Phillips, Menomonee, Monroe, and Eau Claire. Appleton has gone over with the first company in any of the machine gun battalions and is the initial company to start the move for the reorganization of the Rainbow battalion. Oshkosh added fifty men during the week for another company in that battalion.

Two troops of cavalry were added during the week. Troop C of Milwaukee and Ladysmith, to be known as Troop K, the policy being to give old organizations their former letter as far as possible.

Among the others showing the biggest gains during the week are Sheboygan, Wausau, Marshfield, Chippewa Falls, Antigo, and Marinette.

The Metric System
It is probably only a matter of time and America will be compelled to abandon the present crude and clumsy system of weights and measures. In some few respects we have improved upon the archaic calculations of the British, and, of course, we have a more rational money system; but in the main we still adhere to the old standards.

Everyone who has studied the question realizes the appalling waste of time and energy involved both in learning and using both weights and measures system, but we greatly dread the temporary inconvenience of any change. The question of cost has also caused us to be conservative, but this is now to be viewed in the new light of an expanding foreign trade.

Exporting firms, and particularly steel manufacturers, are confronted with a very awkward problem in the use of a double standard; the metric for the foreign and the American for the home market. This means a duplication of machinery, with a greatly increased cost of production; but a change in the measurements of our manufactured articles would not involve a change in the national method of calculating weights and measurements. The metric system could be learned by the workers in the industries requiring it without calling upon the whole nation to alter its calculations.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Castor Oil For Lubrication
Experiments made during the war indicated that castor oil is without doubt the best lubricant for fast-running motors for aerial service. Up to a point various blends of mineral and vegetable oils did well enough, but none of these was found capable of answering the supreme tests of sustained flight under a wide range of temperature and varied atmospheric conditions. Nature, somehow, had endowed the castor oil with characteristics that were singularly and strikingly united, as if the wants of mechanical flight had been curiously anticipated. In India the castor bean has flourished naturally for untold years and has been cultivated assiduously for a number of decades. How many bushels of castor beans are harvested annually in India is not recorded, nor are her exports of castor beans and oil an index of the measure of the industry, simply because the people of India use enormous quantities of the oil for domestic services.

Cigaret Made Her Sick But She Likes Smoking Room All the Same

The manager stood on the stage
And loudly did implore:
"Is there a doctor in the house?
He's wanted at the door."

"We need a doctor awful bad,
A doctor we must get;
A woman from the audience
Just smoked a cigaret."

(By Anna O. Mann.)

CHICAGO—Before I tell you all about the smoking room for 20 years, but what he knows about women smoking is double nix.

My husband thinks he is funny and the writes verses he thinks are funny and he insists that his share of our experiences at Woods' Theater the other night be used, too.

Husband knows all about smoking. He's been smoking cigarettes for 20 years, but what he knows about women smoking is double nix.

He went to the theater with me, but he couldn't find out anything about the woman's smoking room because they would not let him in. But I got in and I'm going to tell you all about it.

In the first place, you've got to understand that I never smoked a cigaret in my life, but when I read about the new idea of a woman's smoking room in a theater, I was keen to try it.

So we went to the show—"A Voice in the Dark"—and after the prologue I slipped upstairs to the smoking room. It was a wonderful room. It seemed as though tobacco smoke just belonged there.

The color scheme was deep red and turquoise blue. The furniture was blue lacquer with red leather cushions. The davenport was a peach and the blue table with its silver gilt top was too lovely for words. The rug was red and the walls blue and at each chair was a brass stand with ash trays, matches and everything.

I was awfully glad to notice that Mr. Rosenthal had had just the right idea, for there weren't any cuspidors.

As I said, I wanted awfully to try a smoke, but I was the only one in the room I went back to my seat.

It seemed awfully funny to walk down the aisle and find husband sitting there like a sulky pigeon. Before last July he used to be the one to go out.

Well, I tried it again after the first act, but there was nobody in the smoking room but the maid. On the wall was a sign, "Ask the maid for Whatchamacallit cigarettes," but as I hadn't brought my purse along I went back to the play. After the second act I paddled back again. This time several ladies came in. They all stopped in front of the big, full-length mirror and powdered their noses, but that was no treat to me because I'd already powdered mine.

One lady seemed especially pleasant. She sank into a chair, stuck her feet on one of the floor cushions and sighed.

"I don't smoke," she said, "but I love to come up here because it makes me feel so devilish."

"Well," said I, "this is a smoking room and I'm going to smoke in it, although I never smoked before. I feel more devilish than you do."

So with that I pulled out a cigaret which Friend Husband had given me and I lifted up my shoe, struck a match and blew out a big puff of smoke.

All the ladies but the devilish one had left and her eyes just popped out. You see I did it so well that she thought right away I was fibbing about never having smoked before.

Once or twice it got in my throat and I nearly strangled. What men can see in smoking is beyond me, I thought.

Pretty soon the bell tinkled and I started back to see the next act. I was awfully dizzy going down the aisle. I stumbled into a lot of people and when I got to my seat my head was going around and I thought maybe the mushrooms I'd had for dinner had poisoned me.

And just before the curtain went up I began to feel awful sick. I turned to husband and I said: "Come on, we've got to go home."

"What's the big idea?" he said, "are you sick?"

"No, I'm not sick," I said, "but I'm afraid something's happened to the children."

"I bet you that cigaret made you sick," he said.

But I wouldn't give him any satisfaction. "I'm not sick," I said, "and if I am, it was those mushrooms that did it."

"If you're sick," he said, "I'll have the manager find out if there's a doctor in the house."

Well, that just made me mad, so I grabbed my coat and went out as fast as I could, and he had to pick up my gloves, the candy, the opera glasses and some toys I'd bought for the children and come hopping after me. That's why he thinks it is funny to write verses about the manager calling for a doctor.

But after all, I'm glad I went and I'm not even sorry I smoked the cigaret. The woman's smoking room is perfectly lovely and it really ought to be used more.

OWEN, CANDIDATE FOR WHITE HOUSE, OF INDIAN DESCENT

DIRECT DESCENDANT OF POCAHONTAS MAY BE WHITE HOUSE RESIDENT BRYAN FAVORITE

(By G. B. Parker.)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—A direct descendant of Pocahontas to occupy the White House?

These things will come to pass if Robert L. Owen succeeds in his ambition to be chief executive of the nation.

Owen is one-sixteenth Cherokee Indian.

Pocahontas belonged to one of the seven tribes of the Cherokee nation. Owen's Cherokee blood comes to him from the same ancestors as those which Pocahontas boasted.

The senator's grandfather was an hereditary chieftain of the tribe. Owen is known among his kinsmen as Oconostota. His grandfather bore the English name of Thomas Chisholm, and he was a friend of Thomas Jefferson.

As a figure in the political life Owen's Indian characteristics evidence themselves in one particular way—by his seeming air of distance when he is among men.

The senator is a most affable companion in his office or home. But in a hotel lobby crowd, his always preoccupied manner gives the impression of "distance." And this trait—a reserve common to the Indian—has always been regarded by Owen himself as a positive liability, politically.

There are those, however, who say it is an asset—that the public is getting tired of and wise to the glad-handing politician.

Books could be written of the romance of his family. His mother was highly educated. As a girl she rode overland 1000 miles to reach a boarding school in Indiana. Her Indian blood was one-eighth.

After she finished school she went to Tennessee as a teacher. There she met a young engineer, Colonel Robert Owen, a man of no Indian blood.

Robert L. Owen is the youngest of two sons.

He was educated in private schools in Virginia and later graduated with master's degree from Washington and Lee. Here he received the president's scholarship as the most diligent scholar and a gold medal as the best debater.

His interest in the Indians led him into public life—first as principal of the Cherokee Orphan Asylum, later as secretary of the board of education in Indian Territory, as editor of the Indian Chieftain, and as United States agent for the five civilized tribes.

As member of the national Democratic committee from 1892 to 1896, he took his first steps in party politics. He was on the resolutions committee which recommended bimetalism in the famous convention of 1896 that nominated Bryan.

His association with the Commoner in the 24 years intervening leads his supporters to believe that, in event Bryan himself doesn't seek the nomination, his strength may go to Owen. Most spectacular of Owen's alignments with Bryan was in the Roger Sullivan campaign in Illinois in which Owen stumped the state to beat his fellow Democrat, Sullivan, charging him with being a ringer of the worst type.

Handsone, well-to-do, Owen as a United States senator since Oklahoma's statehood came, has been a great drawing card as a lecturer.

It is said that during his work on the Owen-Glass Federal Reserve Banking law, he paid out more personal funds hiring investigators and experts to aid him than he received in salary as senator.

In tone he is recorded as ultra-progressive. Some charge him with radicalism.

As a bosom friend of Samuel Untermyer since boyhood, he has been the frequent guest in that famous New York lawyer's home. There he has met many of the great financiers and industrial captains of the land. And his supporters say that these men, as well as the progressives, are for Owen, because they believe that one who could lead the reserve act to victory in the Senate against their combined opposition, and later make them like the very law they so bitterly opposed, has "the stuff."

A few things that Owen has stood for furnish an index to his political nature:

Led the fight in the Senate for the constitutional amendment providing for direct election of senators.

Persistent advocate of initiative and referendum, preferential ballot, short ballot, cloture, corrupt practices prevention, commission form of government for cities, mandatory primary laws, farm loan act, minimum wage, workmen's compensation, woman suffrage, department of public health and the child labor act.

NEW YORK BROKERS TEMPT THEIR MESSENGER BOYS

But Discovery of Plot to Steal $5,000,000 Worth of Bonds May Put an End to Bankers' Trust

By James Henle
(Special to Post-Crescent)

New York—Discovery here, by the police of a plot to rob brokers of $5,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds and other securities has called the attention of financial New York to the practice of trusting boys with large sums of negotiable stocks and bonds.

These youths recently, in many instances, have been unable to resist the temptation thrust at them. During the past year there has been a half-dozen major thefts and any number of minor ones—and a "job" is hardly thought important unless it passes the $50,000 mark—all as the result of over-confidence in none-too-well-paid "runners." The victims of these thefts have been hard-headed bankers and brokers and the equally hard-headed officials of big bonding companies.

No one understands why these hard-headed business men should continue to entrust money to mere boys, especially in view of the magnitude of the sums stolen.

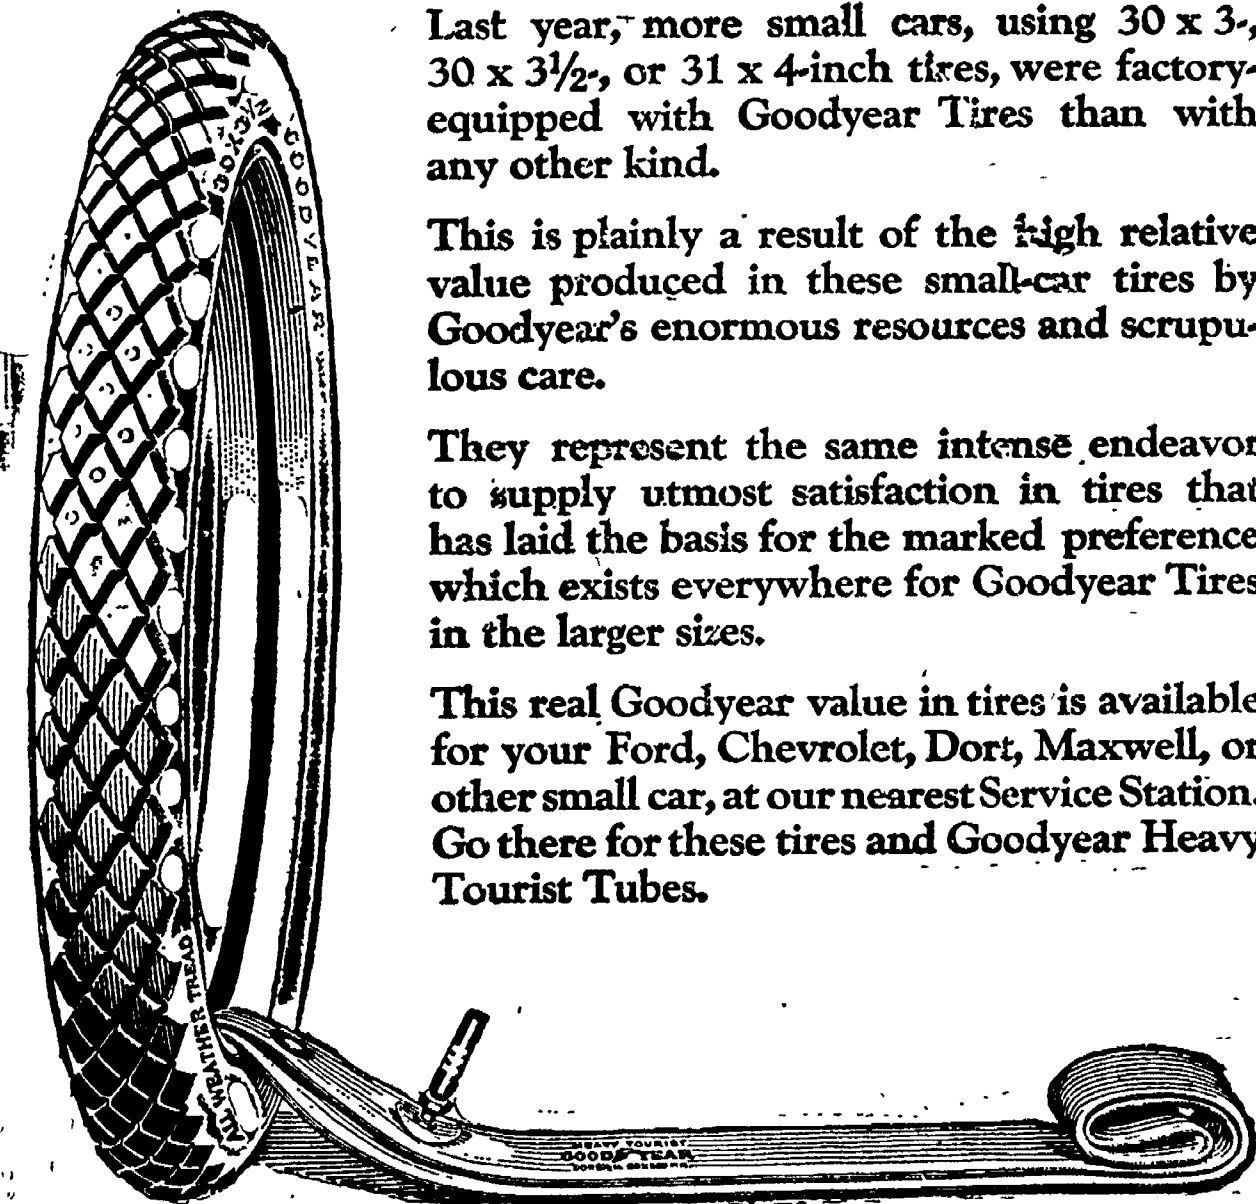

One of the boys in the gang just arrested, Irving Gluck, 19 years old, confessed, according to the police, that during the past year he had stolen over $2,000,000 worth of bonds and other securities. Of course, the boy himself probably received only a small percentage of this sum. He has named a lawyer, also under arrest, who he says disposed of the loot. Young Gluck states that he and his brother spent most of the money they received "on Broadway."

The latest scheme, which was nipped by the authorities, was for a number of brokers' messengers to leave on the same day for Canada, taking with them all the securities on which they could lay hands. In Canada the boys were to go into hiding, while the bonds they had stolen were converted into cash.

Additional interest is lent to the case by the statement that some politicians had promised immunity to the boys, and that the names of these individuals will be revealed before the case is closed.

Silent Motor and Propeller To Make

In discussing the inconvenience and fatigue caused by the continuous roaring of an air-plane's motor and propeller, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, a British official has declared that the elimination of all noise is not only possible, but certain to be attained in the near future. He believes that flying is even now as safe and convenient as travel in a fast express train.

Of course the sugar shortage is due to hoarders, but not the consumers, who have not had any chance to get any to hoard.

AUTOMOBILE THIEF WILL RUN INTO MANY
TRAPS NEXT SEASON

APPLETON GARAGE MEN AND PO-LICE OFFICERS READY FOR MARAUDERS WHEN THEY START

Within not more than six weeks the snow will fade from the wayside and motoring will again creep back to Appleton as one of the chief diversions of the balmy weather that is looked forward to. With it comes that seemingly universal menace, the automobile thief. Garage owners and the police are ready to combat it more this year than ever.

So many devices are in use to prevent thefts of cars now that it is really the fault of the owner that his car disappears. Some of the inventions are the product of automobile dealers, others those of that good old standby, common horse sense. About as effective as any is the arrangement for disconnecting the steering wheel and locking it so that in case the car is started, it cannot be steered. This is in the form of a patent steering wheel which must replace the one in use. Other locks may be had that will lock the magnetos, batteries or other parts of the mechanism. The only danger here is the possible duplication of keys, but only the professional and not the joy rider would try to solve the lock procedure.

One dealer made suggestions that he has used himself, which are usually effective. He detaches an inconspicuous wire, removes a part of the magnetos not commonly carried in the pocket of the thief, places something between operating parts of the machine, or "jams" his engine in some simple, yet not easily detectable way.
The thief usually does not waste any time on a car that won't start, when there usually are plenty near at hand that are left unprotected. And it would take an expert to know where to look in a hurry for a small engine alteration, especially if most owners would use a different device.

What is needed, the automobile dealers here say, is regulation of the sale of used cars. It should be made a difficult task to sell a car that is stolen, and some plan of transfer of ownership that would require positive proof of a legitimate sale is needed.
It is the suggestion of one dealer that the sale of automobiles be handled somewhat after the manner of selling real estate, although not so complicated, of course. The original bill of sale ought always to be produced and signed or witnessed by some designated officer. A bill introduced recently in congress by Representative Harrell of Oklahoma, aims at the idea. The bill calls for the establishment of a federal motor registration bureau in the department of justice, with registrars in each of the states.
No person would be allowed to sell a car without a certificate from the registrar proving that it was his property. There are differences of opinion as to whether the law would accomplish its end, but it is said that it would be a big help.

Perhaps the best preventative of automobile thefts in the coming season is the Appleton police department.
Their work in the past season has shown these unprincipled marauders that there is something else beside the pleasure of bowling along country roads when they take a car that is not their own. Very few cars stolen here ever got very far, and the visuals and equipment of the police this summer will be greater than ever.
They are prepared to give chase in several directions at once, and to flesh warning to a radius of 100 miles around within a few minutes' time when complaint of car thefts is made.

Caution at the source is urged by George T. Prim, chief of police. "Use some safety or locking device on your car," he advises, "and always park in a well-lighted place where detection is easy. Don't wait until your car is stolen and then expect the police to recover it for you. We will get it if there is one chance in a hundred, but it is up to the owners to prevent thefts by the use of common sense and any possible precautions. We have the men, the cars and the speed and will work day and night to recover a stolen car."

FEAR WATER-POWER
BILL WILL BE LOST

WATER POWER LEGISLATION IS TO BE TAKEN UP IN CON-GRESS WHEN RAILMUD-DLE IS SETTLED.

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Washington, D. C.—Water-power legislation that will undo all the work of protecting the public interest in public waterpower sites is likely to be enacted as soon as the railroad legislation is out of the way.

The House water-power bill, amended in important particulars by the Senate, is now in conference committee. Congressman Esch of Wisconsin is chairman of the House conferees, but his duties with the railroad conference committee has so far held up the water-power legislation.
The bill as it passed the House, was the result of 15 years of effort to get legislation enacted that would open the water powers of the country to exploitation, but at the same time protect the public interest. The House bill provides for a limited lease term not exceeding 50 years, reasonable payment for the values granted, prompt construction and continuous operation; and on "recapture" by the government, for reasonable "reimbursement" to the licensee for his net investment.

The Senate, has, for the most part,
opposed these essential provisions, and amended the House measure to make a perpetual grant possible and to eliminate practically any return to the public for the rights it grants.

Section 10 of the Senate bill gives the public water powers away for practically nothing by relieving the licensees from paying the reasonable value of what they get from the public. It limits the charge to reimbursement of the government for the expenses of administering the act, plus a small charge based on the value of government lands occupied.

Thus it practically gives away the enormously valuable water-power rights to be granted under the bill.
At the end of Section 15 of the Senate bill are provisions which make for a perpetual grant. Every half-century will bring changes under which it will be not only right, but necessary for the people to take back and use or dispose again of their resources and privileges, according to the needs, conditions and ideals of that time, said the House members who opposed the perpetual grant.
That is why the House limited the grant to fifty years.

Speaking on the Senate committee amendments which make for a grant in perpetuity Senator Lenroot said: "If this amendment is adopted it becomes for all practical purposes a perpetual license to licensees" and under this bill, because under the terms of the bill it is made practically impossible for a new licensee ever to come in and take this property."

President Roosevelt vetoed the James River and the Rainy River
Dam bills because of the same defects which the Senate bill now contains.
His votes were mainly on these grounds:

"There should be a license fee or charge which, though small or nominal at the outset, can in the future be adjusted so as to secure a control in the interest of the public.

"Provision should be made for the termination of the grant or privilege at a definite time, leaving to future generations the power or authority to renew or extend the concessions in accordance with the conditions which may prevail at that time."

President Taft in his veto message of the Coosa River Dam bill in August, 1912, and in other messages to Congress, took the same ground.

President Wilson also, in messages to Congress, and through the action of the secretaries of war, agriculture and interior, is on record against these Senate provisions in the waterpower legislation.

If the House conferees stand by their previous record of the House, the bill will be amended to protect the public interest, and the Senate's provisions will be eliminated.

Bug Holdup
A bug may hold up a locomotive.
It takes a large number to do the trick, but it has been done. Specialists in the train holdup line in bugdom are the army worm, the tent caterpillar, the cotton worm and migratory locusts. Huge water beetles traveling in force have been known to accomplish the same feat.
When these insects swarm upon the track they so effectively grease the rails that no wheel can be kept turning.—Boston Post.

Buzzards nest in trees in swampy places, if possible; if they can find an island difficult of access to man, they speedily pre-empt the place.
Invite all the members of their kind make the island their breeding ground, where thousands of them gather. At the breeding ground and at the roosting places the ground always is covered with filth, bones, feathers and carrion of all kinds.

THE "BLUES" Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people who worry, are despondent, have spells of mental depression, feel blue and are often melancholy, believe that these conditions are due to outside influences over which they have little or no control. Nearly always, however, they can be traced to an internal source—acid-stomach. Not is it to be wondered at, acid-stomach, beginning with such well defined symptoms as indigestion, belching, heartburn, bloating, etc., will, if not checked, in time affect to some degree or other all the vital organs. The nervous system becomes deranged. Digestion suffers. The blood is impoverished. Health and strength are undermined. The victim of acid-stomach, although he may not know the cause of his ailments, feels his hope, courage, ambition and energy slipping. And truly life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman who has acid-stomach!

Get rid of it! Don't let acid-stomach hold you back, wreck your health, make you miserable, make you a victim of the "blues" and gloomy thoughts! There is a marvelous modern remedy called EATONIC—the good tasting tablets that you eat like a bit of candy—from your druggist today. He will return your money if results are not even more than you expect.

APPLETON GIRL IN BIG NEW YORK PARTY

MISS ELLIEN MOORE APPEARS IN ST. VALENTINE FANCY DRESS BALL IN FAMOUS NEW YORK HOTEL

Miss Ellen Moore, daughter of Dr. L. H. Moore of Appleton, participated in the entertainment features of the St. Valentine fancy dress ball at Hotel Vanderbilt, New York, last Saturday evening. The party was given for the benefit of the American Free Milk for Italy and was one of the most brilliant social events of the year. While the decorations, programs and favors were in keeping with St. Valentine day, the costumes were not confined to the colonial period usually associated with valentines, but ranged from the days of Cleopatra to our own civil war times.

In addition to the brilliant costumes some elaborate and startling entertainment features were arranged. Among these was Alexis Kosloff, formerly of the Imperial Russian ballet headed by his own troupe in a series of Russian dances in which his chief assistants were Miss Moore of this city and Miss Ruth Hazelton of New York. Miss Moore will appear in a similar benefit at the Ritz-Carlton hotel next Saturday night. She recently sang at the Winter Garden theatre at New York and was repeatedly encoored.

KIMBERLY SCHOOL PUBLISHES PAPER

"THE SCHOOL ECHO" IS NAME OF PUBLICATION ISSUED BY UPPER GRADES OF SCHOOL

Volume 1, No. 1 of "The School Echo," published by the pupils of the Kimberly state graded school has just been issued. It consists of eight pages of neatly typewritten matter of interest alike to pupils, parents and teachers. The names of the board of education and the teachers appear on the first page. The former consists of S. R. Stip, president, A. W. Fuller, clerk, and Edward Franz, treasurer. The teachers are Anna Bubolz, principal, Ella Greisbach, Alice E. McGraw and Belle Brier. An editorial paragraph says:

"This is the first edition of a school paper edited by the students in the eighth, ninth and tenth grades of the Kimberly state graded school. The paper will be issued hereafter on the fifteenth of each month."

Among other items mention is made of the return of Miss McGraw from a five weeks' trip to California; of the 100 per cent enrollment of pupils in the Junior Red Cross; of the science class making a trip through the mill for the purpose of studying the process of paper making; and of a trip of the class in agriculture to the poultry show at Appleton. Two pages of the publication are devoted to local advertisements.

INCREASED REGISTRATION AT STATE UNIVERSITY

Madison, Wis.—Saturday was the last day for registration for the second semester at the state university. Indications from the registrar's office were that, contrary to the usual dropping off during the second semester, this year will show a considerable increase in attendance. This is due to more than 300 former service men having been granted the educational bonus and assigned to the university.

FIRST FELT FROM BLACK FOX FARM

Pulaski, Wis.—The first felt from the Pulaski black fox farm, owned by John Mecklinski, was taken to market Thursday. He had been offered $500, but believes the city market is much higher. The farm was started with one pair of black foxes, but now has 17. A full matured fox fur will bring $1,000. Experts claim that the fox is a fine forerunner of the weather. The fact that they breed early in the season is a positive sign that spring will come early. This year they bred twenty-three days earlier than last year and this is regarded as a positive indication that the frost will be out of the ground that much earlier than in 1919.

MEXICAN BANDITS NEARLY CAPTURE FEDERAL LEADER

Mental Work Needs A Stomach

Great Mistake to Imagine You Can Work Better and Faster on the Starvation Plan. Eat What You Like But Follow With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Mental work uses up energy fast. And energy comes from food. To eat little or nothing in order to do more work is a fallacy that has created an army of dyspeptics. A better plan is to eat the regular portions of food such as make up the average meal and follow each meal with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You will then get a double benefit—energy from food and sociability with meals, for as a rule, the light eater, or those who skip meals, get into a bad habit, a rut, of hermit-like isolation. Do not be afraid of gasiness, sour stomach, heartburn, heavy feeling or coated tongue after meals. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets arouse the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve these troubles that so frequently distress the mental worker. They contain harmless ingredients which act with an alkaline effect, so you may eat the rich things of the banquet or the savory sausage for breakfast with utmost freedom. Get a 5-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store, eat freely of what you like and you will do more and better work than on a skippy diet. Try this plan.

TRAVELING MAN IS BIG ASSET TO CITY

MORE THAN $200,000 IS LEFT IN APPLETON ANNUALLY BY KNIGHTS OF THE GRIP

The traveling man, the knight of the grip, is in your city every day. He comes at any hour of the day or night and leaves the same time, providing there is a train for his destination. He arrives only to leave.

His first remark to the hotel clerk is a request for a room and possible mail, the second for information regarding "trains going out in the morning."

The traveling public brings thousands of dollars in Appleton annually. One hundred new arrivals in the city daily are traveling. John Conway said today. "Each one spends on the average of $5 a day." Computed for a year, this is an aggregate total of nearly $200,000.

Your traveling-man of today has changed considerably in the last few years. "Entertainment for the buyer first and business afterward," has changed to "Business first," and usually stops at the second word.

The present year is the biggest in years in the hotel business. More traveling men than ever before are on the road, and hotels everywhere are crowded. A reservation is usually the only means of securing quarters.

"OH BABY."

It is a pretty tough job to please everyone in any walk of life. Especially is this so in the theatrical game. It is doubtful whether any attraction in America has a more enviable record for favorable press comment than has the Marcus Show which will make its initial bow to Appleton in the extravaganza success "Oh Baby" on Wednesday, Feb. 25.

Below are several excerpts from newspapers commenting on the original and number one company, the same will be seen here:

"Not since the days of Weber & Fields, a decade and more ago, has it been so hard to obtain even breathing room in a New York theatre as it is in the current case of 'Oh Baby.'"

"The Marcus Peach chorus will be the talk of Broadway for many a long day. There are thirty of the beauties."

"Admiration has compounded an admixture of double distilled joy, employing portions of sweet girlhood, clean ingenuous costumes, and startling novelties."—New York American.

"Oh Baby" "The Artist's Dream," a spectacular finale proved a great novelty. "Oh Baby" is well worth seeing again and again."

"Mike Sacks is new to New York but he won't be long. It's a long time since a funnier chap made his debut on the Main Street of the Main Town."—New York Clipper.

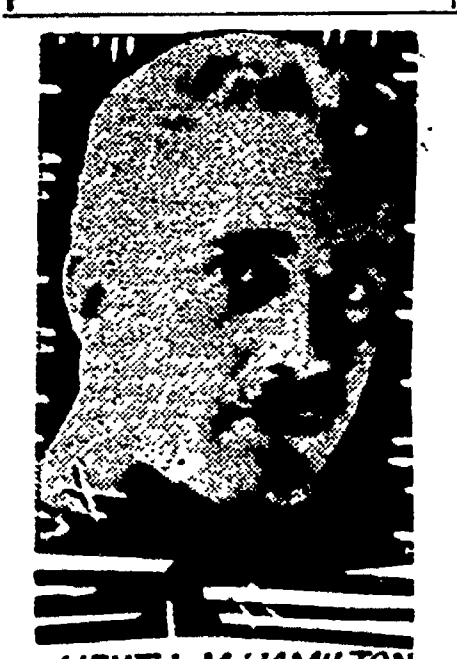

"Oh Baby" comes nearer to Ziegfeld's follies than anything that has ever appeared in Athens."

"The costumes are gorgeous but brief, being none the less attractive for their brevity."—Athens (Ga.) Banner.

ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO SUPPLY ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR TANLAC

Although Huge Laboratories Turn Out 36,000 Bottles Daily Thousands of Dealers Cannot Be Supplied.

40 CARLOADS SOLD IN JANUARY ALONE

After Shipping 838,400 Bottles of Celebrated Medicine in One Month Factory Is Still 380,000 Behind With Orders.

Although the big Tanlac laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, and Walkerville, Canada, have been running at top speed for months, it has been a physical impossibility to supply the phenomenal and every increasing demand for this celebrated medicine.

During the first ten weeks of last year One Million Three Hundred and twenty-seven thousand bottles of Tanlac were sold, breaking all World's record for the sale of proprietary medicines up to that time. This record now pales into insignificance, however, as orders received during January alone of this year reached the astonishing total of One Million Two Hundred and Twenty Thousand bottles, showing an increase of approximately one hundred per cent. over the corresponding period of 1919.

To say that Tanlac now has the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world expresses it mildly. It does not begin to tell the story—for no other preparation has ever even approached the marvelous record that is now being made by Tanlac; and it is now conservatively estimated that the sales for the present year alone will amount to from seven to ten million bottles.

Of the orders received during January it was possible to ship only eight hundred and thirty-eight bottles, and thousands of dealers scattered throughout the United States and Canada have been unable to obtain the medicine for weeks.

"Phenomenal and Bewildering" is the way one of the big drug jobbers of the country describes the marvelous demand for Tanlac.

"We know that the day of miracles has passed, and we all know that there are no unfathomable mysteries in the drug business, but this Tanlac proposition smacks of both" writes another leading wholesale druggist, whose firm has sold over 34 car loads, or an average of nearly one car load per month since they began handling Tanlac a few years ago. Thousands of similar letters and telegrams have been received, but for lack of space they can only be referred to briefly.

Most proprietary medicines are sold by the dozen or by the gross; a few are bought by the trade in quantities of from ten to twenty gross; a very few are sold by the car load, and then only to the largest jobbers, covering extensive territories. The fact therefore that scores of jobbers in this country and Canada have a demand sufficient to justify them in ordering not one carload, but from two to three car loads of Tanlac at a time makes Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to the scientific world. The formula conforms with all National and State Pure Food and Health Laws of both the United States and Canada, and although Tanlac's claims for superiority are abundantly supported by leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions upon millions have used it and have told other millions what it has done for them.

That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade all over America.

Tanlac is sold in Appleton by John E. Voigt and by leading druggists in every town.

SELLS TOBACCO CROP FOR NEAT SUM

Watertown, Wis.—A check for $1,401 received by August Heinemann, Watertown, for the tobacco raised on acres of land last summer, is proof that Wisconsin tobacco growing pays. Taking advantage of the recent warm spell, Mr. Heinemann marketed his crop with the Liggett & Myers Co. here, receiving 17 cents a pound for the leaf. The price received last year was 15 cents a pound. Tobacco is being marketed late here this year because of the lack of high temperatures, known among tobacco men as "case weather."

There are now 11 strikes before the Department of Labor for settlement and 53 controversies which have not yet reached the strike stage.

Superior, Wis.—Democrats of the Eleventh congressional district hope to secure a plank in the state platform pledging the party to work for legislation to clear the cutover lands of northern Wisconsin, according to an announcement made at the district meeting held in Superior. Members of the party also advocated the purchase of T-X-T that is left in the possession of the government. John A. Cadigan, Superior, and W. V. Silverthorn were elected delegates to the national convention.

The Belgian government will electrify its railways, beginning with the lines from Brussels to Antwerp, Luxembourg and Ostend.

FIND OUT JUST WHAT CAUSES YOUR RHEUMATISM

Then You Will Be Able to Treat It Intelligently.

The medical profession has not yet fully determined all of the causes of Rheumatism, though they are pretty well agreed on two points.

The first is, that the disease is more than a mere local trouble; that the pangs of pain come from a source that is far below the surface, and therefore it is not reasonable to expect any rational relief from a treatment that is locally applied and reaches only the surface.

When you realize the logic of this conclusion, you will see that you are really wasting your time and money if you are expecting any permanent relief from the use of liniments, lotions, and other locally applied treatment, which can only reach the surface, and have no effect whatever upon the origin of your trouble.

Any disease should be treated at its source, and especially one that causes as much suffering as Rheumatism. The only treatment worth while is one that will show progress toward getting at the source of the disease, and freeing the victim from its shackles.

The other point that the medical profession has agreed upon, is that some forms of Rheumatism are caused by a tiny disease germ in the blood, which multiplies by the million, and until these germs are routed from the blood, you can see how futile local treatment will be. In fact, you can use liniments by the gallon and never hope to reach the cause of your trouble.

So many people have found real permanent relief from their Rheumatism by the use of S. S. S. that its use is justified in practically every case. Certainly if your Rheumatism is due to a germ in the blood, as so many thousands of cases are, you should lose no time in beginning the use of S. S. S., because you can rely upon this fine old blood remedy to do you more good than any other treatment.

S. S. S. is beneficial in Rheumatism because it is such a thorough blood medicine. It cleanses the blood of all impurities, and eradicates the germs which cause Rheumatism. The wonderful results it has accomplished in other cases is proof of its great merit. S. S. S. has been on the market for more than fifty years and is sold by all druggists.

You are invited to write our medical department for full information and advice about the treatment of your own case, for which no charge is made. Address: Chief Medical Adviser, I. Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Georgia.
